Poison used as threat

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Authorities refuse to confirm or deny a report by the Sacramento Union that someone has threatened to kill innocent people in Sacramento County if President Nixon is re-elected Tuesday.

The Union quoted on Sunday from a note which described Nixon as "the killer" responsible for "the thousands of innocent people killed in Vietnam."

The Union said the note was enclosed in nine packets of food containing deadly doses of cyanide which were mailed to area residents. The story said the writer claimed to have mailed 75 such packets and threatened to place 194 more on the shelves of area food markets if Nixon wins.

William Miller, a spokesman for the Sacramento County Sheriff's Department, refused to confirm or deny the story but acknowledged that the poisoning of the food packets "is related to the Vietnam situation and the killing in Vietnam."

Miller said five of the packets were reported to authorities by residents on Friday, three more on Saturday and a ninth on Sunday.

Officers acknowledged that the packets had notes enclosed but they refused to divulge their contents. News media were asked not to release the contents of the notes if they obtained copies.

Meanwhile, authorities urged local residents to shop carefully. Searches were made of 13 area supermarkets but turned up nothing.

Miller said the poisoned food was all of the type packed in foil envelopes — such as lemonade powder, soup, salad dressing, dip and seasoning mixes. They had been carefully slit with a razor blade, then resealed with transparent tape.

Miller said the packets were mailed in brown manila envelopes which carried phony return addresses.

Each was accompanied by a hand-printed note saying the food was poisoned and that 75 such packets had been mailed to persons selected at random from the telephone directory, Miller said.

Parochial aid to get review

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to review a New York law that provided $28 million a year in state funds for parochial schools until it was declared unconstitutional.

The justices acted on appeals from the ruling by a three-judge panel in New York City last April. The case will be heard early next year and a final decision announced by the end of June 1973.

Appeals had been filed by Arthur Levitt, the state comptroller; Ewald B. Nyquist, the commissioner of education; Earl Brydges, majority leader of the state senate; and three Roman Catholic and two Jewish parochial schools.

The 1970 Mandated Service Act allocated direct payments to parochial and other private schools to reimburse them for administering examinations, maintaining attendance records and making other reports required of the schools by the state.

In a 2-1 decision, the district court in New York held the assistance violated the First Amendment's separation of church and state.

In other actions today, the court:

—Struck down an 1882 law banning unauthorized demonstrations on the U.S. Capitol grounds.

—Declined to hear the plea of a St. Petersburg, Fla., man that a city law prohibiting verbal abuse of policemen is unconstitutional.

The appeal by Levitt and Nyquist emphasized that the nonpublic schools are required to keep records and administer tests in order to comply with New York State's compulsory attendance laws.

Therefore, the state officials said, the schools should be reimbursed for their expenses. They added that "the precise question" has never been ruled upon by the high court.

Brydges, who is also the president pro tem of the state senate, said the reimbursement is limited strictly to costs of "secular, neutral and nonideological" services required by the state.

The legislator said the court recognized this type of payment as being constitutional in its decisions in June 1971 while disapproving reimbursement to parochial schools in Pennsylvania and Rhode Island for instruction in nonreligious subjects.

The third appeal came from the Cathedral Academy in Albany, St. Ambrose School in Rochester, Bishop Loughlin Memorial High School in Brooklyn, Bais Yaacov Academy for Girls in Queens and Yeshivah Rambam in Brooklyn.

They also stressed that private schools are required to comply with state attendance laws.

The reimbursements under the law were 15 cents a day of attendance for pupils in the first through sixth grades and 25 cents a day of attendance for pupils in the seventh through 12th grades. Based on attendance of 180 days, nonpublic schools were reimbursed $27 a year for each elementary pupil a year and $45 for each high school pupil.

The state paid out $28 million last year and $14 million early this year. An addition $14 million scheduled for payment between April 15 and June 15 was enjoined by the district court. In July, Justice Harry A. Blackmun declined to permit the payments while the officials and the schools appealed to the Supreme Court.

Campaign draws to close

BY CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

Democratic challenger George McGovern sweeps from New York to Los Angeles today to climax his uphill presidential drive while President Nixon speaks from his San Clemente, Calif., home in an election-eve windup that typifies the 1972 campaign.

Democratic vice-presidential nominee Sargent Shriver also scheduled a long day of campaigning, from Pittsburgh to Beaumont, Tex., and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew planned last-day appearances in Philadelphia and Richmond, Va.

Independent polls continued to forecast a Nixon-Agnew landslide in Tuesday's balloting that is expected to draw a record total of more than 80 million to the nation's voting booths. Democrats remain favored to retain House and Senate control, plus a majority of governorships.

In a day that took him from St. Louis to Moline, Ill., to New York City Sunday, McGovern continued to accuse President Nixon of deceiving the nation about Vietnam peace prospects and said Nixon has been ruling the country like "a Roman emperor" without regard for congressional powers.

In a nationwide television speech from New York Sunday night, he said peace is not at hand, as claimed by the Nixon administration—"it is not even in sight." He said the remaining issues in the agreement to be worked out with Hanoi are the "central issues of the war. And Mr. Nixon knows it."

McGovern said the administration's "deception" about prospects for peace "is the ultimate utilization of the technique that has become known as 'the big lie.'"

Nixon, meanwhile, spent much of the day relaxing at his oceanfront San Clemente home while declaring in a paid radio speech that the choice in Tuesday's election "is clear-cut and momentous."

He said the balloting could be "one of our finest hours" and listed 10 goals, ranging from "a secure and prosperous America" to "a great and good America," which he said could be achieved "no matter who wins in the next two days."

Indians ready to fight police

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indians occupying the Bureau of Indian Affairs, girding for what they predict will be a battle with police, said today they were declaring war on the United States and threatened to destroy the building they have held since Thursday.

The Indians emphasized their war declaration as the deadline passed for what they said was a Department of Interior order to evacuate or be thrown out.

"They can have the building after it is gutted. When we go, the building goes," said Russell Means, a leader of the Trail of Broken Treaties Caravan which took over the building. He said the approximately 400 Indians in the building spent Sunday night planning their defense against what they say will be a police attempt to storm their makeshift barricades.

U.S. District Court Judge John Pratt, who earlier had issued a temporary restraining order ordering the Indians to leave the building, said today he would decide this afternoon whether to hold the protesters in contempt of court.

If Pratt issues the contempt citation, this would clear the way for police and U.S. marshals to move into the building and attempt to evict the protesters, one of the judge's assistants said.

About 35 Indians armed with clubs and make-shift tomahawks stood at the building's entrance near a barricade formed by several crossed teepee poles. Smaller, sharpened poles jutted out from the barricade.

"We have now declared war on the United States of America—seek your stations," Vernon Bellecourt said Sunday night. Bellecourt is the head of the American Indian Movement which is dominating the demanstration.

Means predicted that any fight between police and the Indians might resemble the Indian massacre at Wounded Knee, popularized by the best-seller, "Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee."

The Indians took over the building last Thursday as they came to the capital to protest their treatment at the hands of government.

In contrast to last Friday night and early Saturday, however, when the Indians prepared to confront police with an emotional fervor that verged on jubilance, the mood early today was sober and brooding.

While there was unanimity in voting to stay and fight rather than accept the government's last offer of housing at a nearby auditorium—this time with portable showers being added to the bargain—the Indians were hushed and stoic while Bellencourt explained the situation.

They shouted "no" to the offer but there was no weaponwaving or chanting, only a rush to start putting in place the barricades removed early last Saturday.

Estimates of the number of Indians in the building ranged from 400 to 2,000.

"Both this administration and our caravan are backed up against the election (Tuesday)," said Dennis Banks, national field director of AIM. "Zero hour is too close to provide meaningful discussion. The government wants this building, they don't care about us."

Britain put under price, wage freeze

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath clamped a 90-day freeze today on wages and prices in his Conservative government's bid to curb Britain's runaway inflation.

He told a packed House of Commons the freeze will apply to wages, prices, rents and dividends subject to a "limited number of exceptions."

The Prime Minister said he will rush through Parliament a bill empowering the government to take action but the freeze will take effect immediately.

Waldheim calls for worldwide war on crime

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim says the world organization should take action to deal with what he called a world crime crisis of growing proportions.

In a weekend report to the United Nations, Waldheim said it might be appropriate for the organization to develop international policy for a fight against crime through meetings of ministers of justice, ministers of the interior or their equivalents.

"Despite material progress, human life has never had a greater sense of insecurity than it is experiencing today," Waldheim said.

He said many areas of the world are plagued by an "ever rising tide of known homicides, robberies, burglaries and sex offenses."

3 choppers shot down

SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces shot down three U.S. helicopters within 14 miles of Da Nang Sunday, killing two Americans and wounding three, the U.S. Command announced today.

An Army AH1 Cobra gunship was hit by small arms fire and crashed in flames 14 miles south of Da Nang, killing one crewman and wounding the second.

An OH6 light observation helicopter was shot down as it attempted to recover the casualties, and one of its crew was wounded. A second OH6 then went in and picked up the dead and wounded, and a relief pilot flew out the damaged OH6. The Cobra gunship was destroyed.

About eight hours later, another OH6 was shot down by small arms fire six miles to the north. The U.S. Command said one crewmen was killed, the second was wounded and the helicopter was destroyed.

The losses raised to 8,488 the total number of U.S. aircraft reported lost to all causes in the war. This includes 4,851 helicopters.

U.S. B52 bombers swept to within 56 miles of the 20th parallel today in their deepest raids against North Vietnam since the resumption of fullscale bombing last April. The raids 34 miles north of Vinh were part of a concerted effort to blunt a Communist buildup of troops and supplies in all four countries of Indochina in anticipation of a cease-fire, U.S. military sources said.

Hijack attempt ends in capture in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — A masked, middle-aged man carrying a .38-caliber revolver, hijacked a Japanese domestic airliner with 127 other persons aboard today in a bid for a plane to Cuba and $2 million ransom, but police in hiding captured him on the ground eight hours later and no one was hurt.

Police said the man first identified himself as a Chinese-American from San Francisco but then told them he really was a Japanese, Tatsuji Nakaoka, who had been living in Los Angeles.

Police said his revolver had six bullets and he had 50 more rounds inside his suitcase. He also claimed to have planted seven 30-pound bombs in the baggage compartment. Two packages, each containing 33 pounds of gunpowder, were found.

Just before the hijacker was captured, the Japanese Air Defense Command got a hijack alarm signal from a cargo flight en route from Anchorage, Alaska, to Tokyo, but the pilot reported he pressed the alarm by mistake.

Authorities gave this account of the hijacking.

The Japan Air Lines Boeing 727 took off from Tokyo for Fukuoka in western Japan about 7:30 a.m. The hijacker hid in the toilet at takeoff and remained there for 40 minutes until the plane was 28,000 feet over Nagoya. At that point he burst into the cockpit, put a pistol to the pilot's head and ordered him to fly to Cuba, but the 727 had too short a range for the 13,000-mile flight and the pilot headed back toward Tokyo.

One of the passengers, singer Skira Mita, told newsmen the crew behaved with great coolness, and the stewardesses let those who wished to walk about. She said there was no panic at any time.

After circling the Tokyo airport for about two hours, the plane landed at 10:45 a.m. For the next five hours the hijacker negotiated with JAL officials, repeatedly refusing to surrender.

Meanwhile, the airline readied a long-range DC8 jet for the flight to Cuba via Vancouver and Mexico and told the hijacker the $2 million had been put aboard.

The man released 121 passengers and the three stewardesses, but kept the pilot and two other crew members aboard at gunpoint.

The hijacker finally forced the three crew members to accompany him to the DC8. As they boarded, a group of police hidden inside the plane jumped the hijacker and other police rushed up the steps to help.

The hijacker was taken to the airport police station.

One of the three crewmen he held hostage was an American, Robert Faulkner, 49, of Manistique, Mich., the flight engineer. All the passengers were Japanese except one, a West German businessman.

The last hijacking in Japan occurred in August 1970 when a man commandeered a domestic airliner with 81 persons aboard over central Japan. He was seized when the plane landed to refuel.

The most sensational hijacking in Japan occurred in April 1970 when leftist students wielding samurai swords commandeered a JAL jetliner and diverted it to North Korea.

Democrats hope for gains in state Legislature, Congress

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Democrats have a big stake in Wisconsin's general election Tuesday, especially if opinion polls are accurate in their forecasts of victory elsewhere for Republican President Nixon.

Democrats hope the momentum developed last spring in Wisconsin's primary election campaign by Sen. George S. McGovern will help him win the Dairy State's 11 electoral votes.

The governor and other Capitol executive officers, as of 1970, are serving four-year terms. For the first time, therefore, there are no top-level statehouse contests to attract voter interest. Nor is there a U.S. Senate election.

But legislative races have been compensatingly lively in many cases, and the state elections supervisor, Leo Fahey, predicted a record 1.85 million persons will vote. That's about 150,000 more than voted in the 1964 and 1968 presidential elections.

Democrats, who won control of the state Assembly in 1970, expect to retain the advantage in this year's balloting. The prospects are less promising that they can overturn Republican control of the Senate, where they have been in the minority since 1893.

In recent years, Democrats have achieved 5-5 partisan equality in the state's House of Representatives delegation, and hope to gain the upper hand this year.

Reapportionment left Wisconsin with only nine house seats. Republican Rep. Alvin O'Konski faces Democratic Rep. David Obey in a showdown in a merged district.

Republican Rep. John W. Byrnes is retiring. Competing in his predominantly Republican district are GOP state legislator Harold V. Froehlich and Democrat Robert J. Cornell, a Roman Catholic priest.

Democratic Rep. Les Aspin is challenged by Republican state legislator Merrill Stalbaum in a congressional district which frequently reverses political affiliation.

The state's three other GOP representatives and three other Democratic representatives are rated as re-election likelihoods.

Despite John F. Kennedy's impressive performance in Wisconsin's 1960 Democratic presidential primary, Nixon won the state. Nixon carried it again for Republicans in 1968 over Hubert H. Humphrey.

Still, there were reasons for Democratic optimism besides the acknowledged muscle of the McGovern campaign organization developed in the April 4 primary.

Pam Powell, national chairman of Young Voters for the President, rated the University of Wisconsin, representing an influential voting bloc, "the No. 1 tough campus in the entire country" for Republicans to have to win.

George E. Reedy, a former Johnson administration aide now teaching at Marquette University in Milwaukee, said a light voter turnout "would probably favor Nixon" but that a heavy one, as forecast by Fahey, "could be ominous" for the President.

Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren, Wisconsin's top GOP office holder, appealed for a large Republican turnout to preserve his party's position in the Senate.

Wisconsin "cannot afford a Democrat-controlled legislature," he said, adding: "We can't afford to let a single Republican voter become a political drop-out this time around."

Polls close Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The Wisconsin weather outlook for election day included forecasts of temperatures in the 40s and 50s, with a routine possibility of rain.

The state has an estimated 241,070 voters less than 21 years of age eligible for the first time to vote in a presidential election.

It is also the first presidential election in which "precinct" has been eliminated as a statutory definition of an electoral unit.

"Ward" has replaced "precinct." At the municipal level, "wards" now are called "aldermantic districts."

Electioneering involves all 99 state Assembly positions and 17 of the state's 33 Senate postitions.

Democrats, who obtained a 66-34 control of the Assembly in 1970 when the chamber had 100 positions, have predicted they can win at least 55 and possibly 66 seats Tuesday.

Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, who may face Warren in the 1974 gubernatorial election, has said similar control of the Senate for his party would assure Wisconsin of a productive legislative session in the next two years.

His party hopes to capture at least four Senate positions from Republicans, thus wresting the chamber leadership from the GOP.

The partisan ground seems fertile for such Democratic hopes because of the large number of Republican senators having to face re-election trials. Of the 17 contested seats, only four involve Democratic incumbents.

Four Republican senators are retiring: Arthur Cirilli of Superior, Myron Lotto of Green Bay, Allen Busby of West Allis and Raymond Heinzen of Marshfield.

Minority parties have assumed an unusually large role on Tuesday's ballot, led by the American party's flow of candidates in congressional and state legislative races.

Seven parties, including Democrats and Republicans, are on the ballot.

The five minor-party candidates for president are:

The American party's John G. Schmitz of California, a Milwaukee native; the Socialist Labor party's Louis Fisher; the Communist Party-USA's Gus Hall; the Socialist Workers party's Evelyn Reed and the Peoples party's Benjamin M. Spock.

Police & fire beat

Janice M. Lakey, 1523 N. Durkee St., reported the apparent theft of her purse about 1:30 a.m. Sunday from Shakey's Pizza Parlor, 2295 W. College Ave.

According to Outagamie County police, the purse contained three payroll checks valued together at $215, an additional $50 in cash, plus a bank book and a check book.

Mrs. Raymond W. Timmer, 3000 E. Edgemere Drive, reported the theft of a coat from the Super Bowl, Outagamie County Trunk OO, late Saturday or early Sunday.

She told Appleton police that the coat was taken from the cloak room and that it was valued at $60.

A tape deck with 15 tapes valued together at $155 were reported stolen from an unlocked car owned by Dennis L. Neverman, 702 N. Division St., late Sunday. The car was parked in front of the residence.

Appleton firemen were called to the Mary Jorstad residence, 513 N. Appleton St., about 9:45 p.m. Sunday after a television set started smoking. The fire was out upon their arrival. No damage estimate was given.

Appleton firemen were summoned to the 500 block of N. Clark Street just after 9 a.m. Sunday to extinguish a fire under the hood of a car owned by Fredrick Ribble, 507 N. Clark St.

The fire was apparently caused by backfiring through the carburetor, which was damaged along with several wires. In addition, part of the paint on the hood blistered.

No damage estimate was given.

Recreation land use quotas eyed

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Legal authority to limit the number of persons using public parks and hunting, fishing and boating areas will be sought by the state Department of Natural Resources, Secretary L. P. Voigt said recently.

Voigt told University of Wisconsin Extension's annual meeting that the public will not stand for increased taxes to support the purchase of sufficient public recreation areas to meet the needs of an expanding population. So, he said, the only solution to the dilemma was some system of regulating public facilities.

"With continuing population pressure, especially around metropolitan areas, we know that in some cases 50 people are jamming into a place that has room for five," he said.

Agriculture Secretary Donald Wilkinson, meanwhile, used the gathering of 600 Extension employes to lash out at dairy farmers who refuse to support activities promoting their product.

"If dairy farmers are not interested in sponsoring promotion themselves, maybe this is a function we can leave to the private sector," he said.

Wilkinson suggested that maybe state cheese promotions and the state Alice in Dairyland program should be dropped for lack of interest by the dairy farmers.

Melvin Sprecher, president of Wisconsin Dairies Co-op at Baraboo and Land O'Lakes Dairy Co-op of Minneapolis, also was critical of the dairy farmers.

"We look pretty shameful in Wisconsin, where we must export 85 per cent of our dairy products, when much of it goes into areas where dairy farmers are doing a far superior job of promotion than we are," he said.

Transportation Secretary Norman Clapp predicted renewal of the double-bottom truck controversy in the Wisconsin legislature. He said dairy farmers, the Post Office, the Port of Milwaukee and truckers all strongly support making the trucks legal in the state because they feel the use of such vehicles would be more economical. He predicted they would be approved for use on four-lane highways.

Precedent says Nixon to have Democratic congress

Only recent historic precedent supports the indicated election result on Nov. 7 that will pit a triumphant president of one party against a Congress of another. Until the middle of the 20th century, the same party usually controlled both the White House and the congress. Sometimes the president's party lost control of the house and senate in mid-term elections as a result of unpopular policies. With few exceptions, however, a new administration began its term in office with its fellow partisans also dominant on Capitol Hill.

Therefore, if the Democrats hold onto congress this year despite a Republican presidential landslide, it may mark the institutionalization of a new "two-track system" of American politics featuring different voter behavior and party perceptions on the presidential and congressional levels. Here, then, are this year's possibilities and prospects:

— Odds favor a Nixon presidential victory of a size that would normally tip congress to the Republicans yet the prevailing opinion is that this will not occur;

— 1972 may reaffirm, in the most striking way to date, the recent pattern of conservative Democrats, especially southerners, voting for a Republican president and then for conservative local Democratic candidates for congress;

— Under this year's circumstances, such results would probably solidify a two-track system whereby conservative Democrats kept their separate congressional identity but worked on a coalition basis with the national

GOP change started in 1948

As the accompanying chart shows, until World War II, the vote for congress and the president generally was quite parallel. Election of a new president invariably meant a new congress of the same party. This pattern began falling apart in 1948, when the South started jumping out of its traditional Democratic presidential orbit. In his recent book, "The Ticket Splitter," vote analyst V. Lance Tarrance Jr. likewise pinpoints 1948 as the year in which a large gap began to open between congressional and presidential voting (21.3 per cent of congressional districts backed White House and congressional candidates of different parties, up from 11-14 per cent during the Roosevelt years).

Wide disparities remained in 1952 and then grew again in 1956 as Republican Dwight Eisenhower carried an unprecedented number of Dixie congressional districts while only a handful of Southern Republican candidates were successful. In subsequent years, the Dixie two-track system not only failed to go away, it got worse. Nineteen Sixty-four saw Republican Barry Goldwater win most of his electoral votes in the South, while four out of five Republicans elected to the house of representatives came from the North!

According to Tarrance's figures, a record 33.3 per cent of congressional districts, both above and below the Mason-Dixon line, voted in 1964 for a congressman and a president of different parties. Four years later in 1968, with independent George Wallace making it a three-way race, he carried most of the congressional districts that had been the core of Dixie Democratic strength on Capitol Hill, and once again, the number of constituencies splitting their tickets was in the 30 per cent range. One can guess at this year's result. However, if President Nixon carries 80 per cent of the congressional districts, a fair possibility even with 57 per cent of the total vote, and if the GOP elects only 45 per cent of the congressmen, the spread could be the widest ever.

If the GOP cannot make major gains in congress this year, the situation will be in marked contrast to the supposed parallel of Eisenhower's 1956 landslide when the Republicans also failed to take congress. Back in the early and mid-1950's, the GOP usually had anywhere from 180 to 220 congressmen (218 constituted a house majority), and almost all of these Republicans came from outside Dixie. With 180-220 out of 325 Northern congressmen, this meant that the GOP dominated congress outside the South from 1950 to 1958. Anywhere from 55 per cent to 65 per cent of the Northern congressmen were Republicans, a high level which the GOP has not since been able to reach.

Note also that the large block of Northern Republicans were elected in the two Eisenhower landslides: 213 Northern Republican congressmen in 1952 and 192 in 1956. Since that time, there has been no presidential election where the GOP candidate has received more than 50 per cent of the Northern vote — no landslide situation to give the GOP another shot at electing 180 or 190 Northern Republicans.

Some more hypotheses

Although media experts talk about a repeat of 1956 helping the Democrats, the GOP will surely take Congress if 1956 repeats itself in the North in 1972. Should the GOP elect 185 congressmen from the North, it is likely to elect 35 from the South, enough to tip control. And herein lie the vital questions of the 1972 congressional race: 1) Will a Nixon landslide in the North give the GOP as many congressmen as the Eisenhower landslides did? and 2) Is the South ready to elect 35 or 40 Republican congressmen this year (up from 29 in 1970)? If so, there will be a Republican congress. If not, the "two-track system" will be confirmed as it never has been before.

Some inquiry, then, is due into the separate effects of landslides on the congressional vote in the North and South. Here again is a distinction usually ignored. First, the Northern pattern, which is clearly one influenced by presidential votes: Since World War II, there have been three presidential landslides in the North: Eisenhower's in 1952 and 1956, and LBJ's in 1964. In the first two, with a Republican pulling 57-59 per cent of the Northern vote, the GOP captured 190-210 of the 325 regional congressmen. In the third contest, with Barry Goldwater drawing only 36 per cent of the 1964 presidential vote in the North, the GOP elected only 123 Northern congressmen. The other three elections — 1948, 1960 and 1968 — have been close in the North, and as a result, the two parties have usually split the Northern congressmen fairly evenly, with the GOP capturing 160-170 Northern seats. This year, if Richard Nixon chalks up the first Northern GOP landslide since 1956, it would be meaningful indeed if the GOP cannot break out of the 160-170 house seat range.

The reason the 1956 Eisenhower landslide did not enable the Republicans to capture congress is that the GOP had about all the seats it could reasonably win in the North while the South was still not open to local Republicanism. As late as 1950, the only GOP congressmen elected in the South came from three mountain districts in Kentucky and Tennessee that had gone with the North in the Civil War. Otherwise, the South's more than 100 representatives in congress were entirely Democratic.

A few GOP gains occurred in 1952: three seats in Virginia and one in North Carolina. And in 1954, the Republicans lost one of the Virginia seats, but added one in Texas and one in Florida. Otherwise, there were no gains.

The 1954 Supreme Court decision outlawing segregation hurt GOP prospects. Not one new Southern Congressional seat fell to the Republicans in 1956 despite the Eisenhower landslide! Even in 1960, when Richard Nixon ran fairly well in the South against John Kennedy, the GOP did not pick up any Southern Congressional districts.

A breakthrough in 1964

Things began to change in 1962. Five new Southern seats tumbled into the GOP column. Then in 1964, with Barry Goldwater's Southern Strategy in operation, the GOP finally broke through in the old South: seven Alabama, Mississippi, and Georgia districts surprised everybody by electing Republican congressmen. At the same time, three Republican congressmen lost in Outer South areas of Texas and Kentucky. A total of 17 Southern GOP congressmen were elected.

Bear in mind that Barry Goldwater did not win a majority of the Southern vote. Because of a huge Texas plurality, the edge went to LBJ. Nor did Richard Nixon win a majority of the Southern presidential vote in 1968. As a matter of fact, George Wallace's third party candidacy kept the Republican presidential vote in the South down to just 35 per cent! However, even with that top of the ticket shortfall, the Republicans managed to elect 29 Southern congressmen.

What should happen, then, in the fact of the first Southern GOP landslide in history? The GOP was not positioned to take coattail advantage of the 1956 race, where Eisenhower roughly split the South 50-50 with Stevenson. But this year's Dixie presidential landslide will be much, much bigger. Estimates of the Southern Nixon vote usually run from 60 to 70 per cent. It will be the first Southern presidential landslide for either party since 1944. Under these circumstances, it would be odd — and extremely telling — if the GOP doesn't pick up another five to ten Southern congressmen for a total of 35-40 out of more than 110.

Thus, if Nixon wins the 56-58 per cent national landslide that most of the polls are forecasting, his Northern edge will probably be 55-45 per cent and his Dixie victory more like 63-37 per cent. If past patterns hold up, this should give Congress to the GOP first, the Republicans theoretically ought to elect 180-185 Northern congressmen, up from the 160 to 170 they have elected in nip-and-tuck presidential years likd 1948, 1960 and 1968. At the same time, they ought to elect 35-40 Southern GOP congressmen. While this discussion has concerned the House of Representatives, the same mathematics (using past trends) should enable the GOP to pick up the four or five seats they need to control the senate. Any Republican takeover of congress would shift many Southerners on Capitol Hill into the GOP camp.

The consensus here in Washington is that it will not happen, and that the Democrats will narrowly keep control of the house and the senate. If so, this would mean that the "ticket-splitting" two-track system of conservative Democratic voting behavior (national Republican for president, local Democratic for congress) is being institutionalized, and that local GOP candidates can't profit much from even the first Dixie Republican presidential landslide since the Civil War. It would also probably mark the first Northern presidential landslide which didn't produce a Northern congressional delegation decisively weighted toward the party winning the landslide, and ticket-splitting would necessarily occur on a record scale.

3 chancellors see no conflict

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Three University of Wisconsin chancellors told a special regent committee Thursday they do not think their appointments as bank directors conflict with their academic duties.

Stevens Point Chancellor Lee Dreyfus and La Crosse Chancellor Kenneth Lindner said their extracurricular jobs as bank directors constitute a community service.

Dreyfus, who contributes the pay he receives as bank director to a student foundation, told the committee "I think we need that kind of involvement in the community."

The committee is looking into the propriety of top university officials holding such posts. It took no action Thursday.

UW President John Weaver recently resigned from his position as a trustee in a Milwaukee real estate trust after coming under fire for accepting the job.

Lindner told the committee he receives $100 for each monthly bank directors meeting he attends, and $50 for each of four annual meetings.

Lindner and Dreyfus conceded they probably were appointed to the bank jobs because of the prestige they hold as chancellors. Whitewater Chancellor William Carter, who also appeared at the committee meeting, said he was chancellor two years before being asked to become a bank director.

VOTER ABOUT TO CLOSE CURTAIN

Moving the Red Handle To The Right

If You Change Your Mind, Turn UP a Voting Pointer and Turn DOWN Another for the Same Office.

As no votes are registered until the Red Handle is moved to open the curtain, you can make as many changes as you desire while the Red Handle is at the right side. The machine is so arranged that you can turn down only the proper number of voting pointers for each office; you cannot spoil your ballot by voting for too many candidates. Each candidate's voting pointer is located just above the name; a voting pointer must be turned down over the name of each candidate for whom you wish to vote. LEAVE VOTING POINTERS DOWN. No one will know how you have voted because the movement of the Red Handle to the left returns the voting pointers to the original position before the curtain begins to open.

Torticollis is a real pain in the old neck

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please tell me what you know about wry neck and the best way to treat it.

Is an operation to cut the muscle dangerous? Will it handicap you? B.C.

Do you mean tell you everything I know about wry neck? Or just some?

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

And the "best way to treat it?" The best treatment is the one that fits the cause — if you can find out the cause.

Torticollis, or wry neck, is a pain in the neck in more ways than one. In plain language, it is difficult to treat and results are unpredictable. Most of the time, the cause is not clear, which makes it difficult for all concerned.

A basic part of investigating the trouble is to have Xrays in case changes in the neck spine are responsible.

Often no such distortion is found — but the psychological factor can be the paramount problem, and in some cases psychotherapy is necessary to get the patient's psychological quirks "unwound."

Sedatives may help; muscle relaxants usually do not, even though excessive tautness of certain muscles may be the basis of the problem. The trouble is, how do you relax certain muscles while not affecting other muscles, the services of which are required to draw head and neck back into balanced condition?

Surgery — cutting of certain nerve trunks or muscles — is a last-resort procedure. If that happens to work, fine, but there's no guarantee that it will.

Wry neck is, as I've already said, no easy proposition, and the "best treatment" is the one that works. If it does.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When one has Parkinson's disease and is taking L-dopa, is there anything to take for sleepless nights that wouldn't interfere with the L-dopa? Is it safe to take aspirin or sleeping pills? — G.T.

Sleeping pills (such as barbiturates) may be used with L-dopa. Aspirin also can be used — for some patients it has a sedative effect.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About 10 years ago the doctor found my husband had emphysema and should quit smoking. Sometime later a specialist found he had angina.

He quit smoking for 10 years and felt good and looked good. A short time ago he started to smoke again. He has lost weight and has a peculiar cough, especially at night.

I am very concerned and would like you to explain the effect of smoking on a person with this condition. — Mrs. D.S.

Why should I explain, when you are seeing what happens right before your eyes? The angina and emphysema complicate each other. No emphysema patient should smoke — and I am astonished and saddened that your husband can't understand it.

Emphysema can be controlled. To learn how to live with this serious lung disease, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent, requesting a copy of the booklet, "How to Control Emphysema," enclosing a long, self-addressed (use Zip Code), stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

A story about a man by the name of Smith

MEREDITH, N.H. (AP) — A 450-pound baby hippopotamus that John Smith found on his porch at 3 a.m. in the morning has been recaptured and returned to Animal Forest Park, a nearby tourist attraction.

Workmen from the animal park caught up with the escaped hippo in a swamp near Scenic Road at Weirs Beach on Thursday and returned him to captivity.

Smith had doubted that police would believe a call about a hippo on the porch, especially from a man named John Smith.

Most newspapers in state endorse Nixon

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Nixon has been given high marks as an international diplomat and a steadying influence in the United States by most of Wisconsin's daily newspapers in their endorsements in Tuesday's election.

A survey of 30 Wisconsin dailies shows 18 having endorsed the President, five boosting the candidacy of Democratic nominee George S. McGovern, and seven making no endorsement.

"He has made his greatest contribution in unifying the American people and in ending the bitter strife which marred the domestic tranquility when he came to office," the Wausau Record-Herald said in endorsing Nixon.

"We believe the President has been a steadying influence on the internal tenor of this nation. Since he took over, the entire direction and nature of these United States has moderated, steadied and again been restrengthened in those ideals and freedoms which are so uniquely ours," the Monroe Evening Times said.

In its endorsement, the Milwaukee Sentinel cited the President's efforts to end U.S. involvement in Vietnam and his successes in foreign policy.

The Sentinel said Nixon has "played the decisive role in keeping war from flaring anew in the Middle East, thereby averting an explosion that could have touched off World War III."

The President also "scored a momentous diplomatic breakthrough with his visits to Peking and Moscow and took a long stride toward the goal of a generation of peace by reaching initial agreements with the Soviet Union to limit strategic weapons," the Sentinel said.

"Mr. Nixon's most impressive credits have been gained in the field of foreign affairs where his personal diplomacy has paid off handsomely for the United States," The Post-Crescent said in its endorsement.

Papers endorsing McGovern and some not making an endorsement cited deficiencies in the Nixon administration.

"The Nixon administration's disappointments are too many, accomplishments too few," the Wisconsin Rapids Daily Tribune said.

"McGovern's ticket promises an attractive alternative."

The Chippewa Falls Herald Telegram and Portage Daily Register said the Nixon administration "has done a poor job" in handling the ecomomy, improving domestic relations, public education and cleaning up the environment.

"Most important," they said, the administration "has written a record of lies and dishonesty that stretches from Watergate to this week's disclosure by Time magazine that an assistant to the President paid a West Coast lawyer to purposely lie and sabotage campaigns of men who sought the Democratic presidential nomination."

"We support George McGovern because he has a long record of public service which has always been honest," the papers said.

"Perhaps one of the more important but least-noted McGovern proposals is his call for open government," the Sheboygan Press said in endorsing McGovern.

"George McGovern's program for candor between government and the governed is not just a campaign issue. His is a long history for open government, for candor and for discussion," the Press added.

"There comes a time in politics when either choice is an unacceptable choice," the West Bend News said. The newspaper said it was generally satisfied with the Nixon administration.

"Then came Watergate and the involvement of top Nixon men in that piece of sleazy politics," it said, "and we cannot stomach it."

Papers endorsing or saying they would endorse the President include:

The Post-Crescent, Appleton, Beloit Daily News, Eau Claire Leader-Telegram, Fond du Lac Reporter, Jefferson County Union, Green Bay Press-Gazette, Janesville Gazette, La Crosse Tribune, Madison State Journal, Manitowoc Herald-Times, Marinette Eagle-Star, Marshfield News-Herald, Milwaukee Sentinel, Monroe Evening-Times, Oshkosh Daily Northwestern, Racine Journal Times, Stevens Point Journal and Wausau Record Herald.

Newspapers endorsing McGovern include:

The Sheboygan Press, Madison Capital Times, Wisconsin Rapids Daily Tribune, Chippewa Falls Herald-Telegram and Portage Daily Register.

Those announcing no choice include:

The Milwaukee Journal and West Bend News.

Kookie Kraut.

Frank's Kraut in cookies? Only if you want them to be especially moist and tender! As tender as the delicate "hearts" of plump cabbages used for Frank's.

Whatever the gender, the game's the same—football

BY CAROL DIEHL
Post-Crescent Correspondent

MANAWA — "Move over men. Here come the girls! Your football field is being invaded." Donning belts with cloth flags, girls from Little Wolf High School are challenging each other on the playing field.

Flag football is the name of the game. It is a variation of touch football but elminates most of the tackling and still gives the players an understanding of regulation football.

The game is one of several changes that have entered into physical education programs. Archery, track and field, badminton, field hockey are sports that are already part of the girl's program along with softball, volleyball, basketball and gymnastics.

New experience

Beverly Butler, physical education instructor at the high school, explained that the athletic program for girls is geared to providing new experiences that will carry over into their adult worlds.

"Flag football gives them an opportunity to know what's happening on the football field in conference play. They get some idea of what the guys are doing on the field."

Girls in the freshman and sophomore classes learn team sports. Those enrolled as juniors and seniors now have an opportunity to choose an activity, with conentration also given to individual sports such as bowling and golf.

"I think the girls like the different choices because some of the games are unique. We try to give them opportunities that will carry over. It gets a little harder to run down the basketball court as we get older. Somewhere, we hope that each will pick an activity to continue with in adult life," Miss Butler added.

"Good for them"

Robert Lieberman, head football coach and physical education instructor, smiles when asked how he liked teaching female students flag football.

"I think it's good for them because they become better spectators when they know what is happening on the football field. They had some good games this year in intramural activities even though their fundamentals aren't as good as the boys. I thunk with practice they could be good players."

Student response was bubbling from Barbara Hass. "Flag football was really fun. I think even tackling would be fun. We really aren't feminine today and we would rather be treated rough," she stated, adding that she had grown up on a farm and always liked sports.

"I think we would really have more success in the game if we played as a team instead of individuals."

Becky Heimbruch added her comments. "Flag football is like a skill for the flags are very hard to grab and when we played Marion and lost 14-0 it seemed we always missed the flags." She was concise in her analysis of that particular loss.

Mike Voss and Dave Young, seniors who helped with the coaching, both said they enjoyed their new experience.

25-mile club

The Girls' Athletic Association (GAA), an organization within the school system, also sponsors the 25-mile club. Miss Butler explained that the girls who are participating must run one mile without stopping, at their own speed. Each girl strives to achieve a total of 25 miles per semester for a total of 50 miles at the end of the school year.

Donna Collar is presently running three to four miles each Wednesday.

Why?

"It's a challenge to try to see what you can do. When I started I couldn't even make one mile in one night. Hopefully, if I keep it up, I'll even lose some weight," she laughed. So far Donna has logged 21 miles this semester.

Physical education programs today bear little resemblance to the earlier formal gymnastic-type programs. They are becoming more flexible to take in the needs and interests of the individual. The emphasis is not so much on exercise for the sake of exercise, but to teach skill, technique and understanding that will stay with them as permanent parts of their life interests.

Today's physical education is seeking to imbue appreciation from the standpoint of a spectator and reader of sports, as well as participation in them.

Florence O'Brien, a junior, summed it up. "It's a lot of fun. Today you have a choice to pick something you like in physical education and work hard at it." Her choice? Flag football.

Not a downer

Though it may be fourth down and a punting situation, the offense isn't on a downer as center Marcella Mengert goes into the motions of snapping the ball to punter Sue Wurth. Members of the Girls' Athletic Association have their sports option and many called the play — flag football.

Here's the play!

Nancy Ferg fathers her players around her during an exhuberant fall afternoon of flag football. Will it be a tight end around or a quarterback sneak? Whatever the call from the huddle, the seniors who take to the Little Wolf High School playing field gain insight into the intricacies of the sport, even if they run cleatless over the turf.

Get him!

No, Dave Young isn't about to be crushed by a fearless defensive line of females. He's one of the instructors who has taken an interest in making the sport come alive for girls and he is also a senior high school coach. According to him "It's good for them" and "with practice, they could be good players."

Dejection?

Motorcycle headlight study reveals facts

A newly released National Highway Traffic Safety Association study shows that burning motorcycle headlights in the daytime pays off. The study, by Franklin Institute Research Labs, of the four states requiring such usage, gives an annual projected savings of 7,000 motorcycle accidents if all states had similar laws. Lighted taillights regrettably — even modified by intensity, height, and number — do not increase noticeability. This is another reason to constantly use rear view mirrors, and to wear protective gear, including helmets.

Girl Scouts to explore arts

About 400 Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts will gather at 12:45 p.m. Saturday at Conant Junior High School in Neenah to begin an adventure, "Exploring the Arts." Workshops in such things as ceramics, modern jazz dancing, theater, yoga and collage will be conducted at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh, Fox Valley Campus of UW and Lawrence University. After arriving at the junior high, the girls will be divided into groups and will go to the universities where the workshops are being held.

Later, the Scouts will return to the Neenah junior high where supper will be served. During this period they will have an opportunity to see what other groups did at their workshops.

The Scouts have been asked to wear their uniforms with nametags they have made. They also are to bring materials or fees as listed in the brochure each received.

To register for this special event, each girl will pay the $1 fee to her leader and indicate her choice of interest groups.

Chairman of the program being sponsored by the Fox River Area Girl Scout Council is Mrs. George Skowronski, Neenah.

Conducting the workshops will be faculty and students at the three universities.

As the workshops are being conducted, leaders and senior advisors may participate in a council-sponsored roundtable on communications.

Ann Landers

Try technique used with others

Dear Ann Landers: You've already printed several letters about that sex-maniac husband who kept score and tallied the excuses his wife gave him for not responding to his advances. I hope you will print one more.

Perhaps if that clown weren't so busy with his bookkeeping he might have time to open a car door for his wife, or help her bathe the kids at bedtime, or phone her to say he'll be a half an hour late for supper, or stop to buy a single flower for no particular reason — or take a shower before getting romantic.

My husband is a "scorekeeper" too, and he had the nerve to clip that column. When he handed it to me he said, "Here, read this and tell me if you recognize anybody you know." In all the years we've been married he never once clipped a beautiful poem, but that stinkin' column he found.

What I'm saying is that husbands would have better scores if they'd exert a little energy to make their wives feel special. Isn't that the technique they use to get other women in bed? — Only Human

Dear O: Here's one you can clip and hand to him. If he has an answer I'll print it.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the woman who said she and her second husband had a talk about how to divide their possessions in case of death so there would be no misunderstanding or hard feelings among their children, and how they went to a lawyer and put it in their wills.

It sounds neat and simple, but please, Ann, tell your readers that if they want to make sure nothing goes wrong, to obtain a doctor's notarized statement declaring that the two parties are of sound mind at the time of the bequest.

My own dear mother had little notes all over the place — instructions on what she wanted done with certain pieces of furniture and paintings which were precious heirlooms. But the notes didn't mean a thing. Two years ago she became ill and was transferred from the home for the aged to a hospital. Mother is not insane but she does get confused. One of her children who had power of attorney decided to declare her incompetent and sell the family home and all her possessions. Believe me, Ann, I can afford to buy anything I want but I am heartbroken because I know this is not the way Mother wanted it. — Billing, Mont. Daughter

Dear Daughter: Thank you for the excellent bit of counsel. That brother of yours sounds like a living doll. Time wounds all heels, and he'll get his — eventually.

Dear Ann Landers: Mom and Dad have been divorced for nine years. There is no chance that they will ever get back together again. My question is this: I have a small photograph of them together that I just love. I would like to have it enlarged and hang it in our living room. Should I or shouldn't I?

My parents speak when they see each other but that's about all. This picture means a lot to me because it brings back memories of the days when we had a happy home. After all, they are my parents and I want to remember them that way. Mom has remarried but Dad has not. He comes over more than Mom. I don't think it would make any difference to him. What do you say, Ann? — Hung Up in Canton

Dear Canton: If you want to have the photograph enlarged and keep it in your bedroom, go ahead. But I wouldn't post it in the living room. It might be embarrassing for your mother and her present husband — and possibly a little unsettling for your dad.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 35 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and your request to The Post-Crescent.

Downhill skiing calls for different clothes

NEW YORK — Wear warm, windproof clothes for downhill skiing, layers for cross-country.

That's the advice from the current Seventeen, which points out that while downhill skiers have a problem with the cold on treeless mountains and high chairlifts, cross-country (or Nordic) skiers usually ski in less windy areas: parks, fields, woods.

The cross-country skier does need clothing that allows for lots of leg movement — knickers are particularly good — and layered things to take off as the weather changes. Start with a T-shirt next to your skin, over that a shirt or a blouse, then sweater, then jacket. Some bright ideas: Charcoal blue corduroy knickers with a man-tailored Oxford shirt and scoop-necked print sweater; one-piece bandanna print overall knickers over a blue nylon bandanna shirt, with a bandanna tied around your hair; a chambray shirt and rolled-up jeans (both waterproofed with a spray), worn over a sleeveless print shrink sweater over a yellow long-sleeved sweater. Always add knee socks, print or plain.

Downhill skiers, too, can stand out vividly in everything from wild multicolored overalls and a matching jacket to a plaid patched yellow nylon jumpsuit with snow cuffs to keep boots snow free. This year's new idea: nonskid pants so you don't slide down the hill and into the woods if you fall.

For skiers who like a laugh with their sport, here's a new make-up idea: paint bright racing stripes down your face or across your nose.

Aces on bridge

by Ira G. Corn, Team Captain

The defending side can communicate with each other by various conventional signals. One of the most common of these is the lead of fourth best, particularly against no-trump contracts.

While these signals are of great importance to the defense, they can also guide the declarer. But only if he takes the time to notice what the defenders are doing.

Witness a good example in the play of today's game contract.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	3 NT	All Pass

Opening lead: Four of hearts.

The bidding was uneventful. South might have opened one club instead of one no trump; however, the latter bid should be preferred, since it describes the hand's strength in one bid.

West led the fourth-best heart and declarer hopefully played dummy's queen. If West had led from the king, declarer's problems would have been over. As it turned out, East covered and declarer's problems were just starting.

Declarer ducked East's heart king and was forced to take the third round, West playing the three and then the six of hearts.

Declarer then played four rounds of clubs, ending in his hand and keeping a high one in dummy. He then tried for his ninth trick by leading a low spade to dummy. West played low and declarer had to guess whether to play the ten or the queen. Was it really a guess?

For the unobserving declarer it was. He played the queen, which East took with the king and the hand was over. Declarer had only eight tricks and was down one.

The alert declarer would have made the hand. When West followed suit in hearts he gave East "the count" by playing his three and six of hearts. Since he had led the four (fourth best), his play of the three confirmed a five-card suit.

With this knowledge, declarer need ask only one more question when the low spade is led to dummy, "If West has the king and two more good hearts, why would he not win and cash the hearts?"

This routine analysis guides the declarer to the winning play. He plays dummy's spade ten to drive out the king and makes his contract.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

'All things Swedish' may become a popular trend

"The Swedish are coming! The Swedish are coming!" is one cry this fall as excitement about Swedish royalty, a Swedish movie and Swedish fashions spills over in alll directions.

Her Royal Highness Princess Christina, the youngest granddaughter of King Gustav VI, has been visiting our major cities. "The Emigrants," a film adopted from Vilhelm Moberg's trilogy about early Swedish settlers in the United States, has been acclaimed in its premiere engagements in this country And "The Northern Highlights," an all-Swedish trade show of ready-to-wear and sportswear, the first since 1968, has recently concluded its successful presentation in New York to buyers and the press.

The result has been an enormously increased interest in things and styles Swedish.

The Swedish national character is beautifully depicted in "The Emigrants," Jan Troell's epic film for Warner Bros. that stars Max von Sydow and Liv Ullmann as peasant farmers who leave their homeland in search of a better life in the United States. Indicative of that character are the costumes worn by Liv Ullmann in the film.

Some of these rough costumes, typical of the attire of European peasant women in 1844, are now on exhibition in New York. These were women who worked in the fields, hauled water, chopped wood, washed clothes in melted snow and scrubbed, cooked and cleaned from pre-dawn to late at night.

The winter outfits from "The Emigrants" are neutral in color, mostly greys and browns, and the fabrics are roughly woven or heavy blanket wools, sometimes worn with a coarse linen blouse. They are Spartan plain, without ornamentation. Women wore clogs or boots and style was something that modestly covered the body and protected from the elements.

In sharp contrast to these utilitarian clothes from 1844, yet somehow retaining their simplicity, are the highly styled 1973 spring styles presented at "The Northern Highlights" by such leading Swedish firms as Anna-Modeller, Bertil Wahl, One Seven, and MMT. There are bright prints, bold patterns and soft pastels. Fine wools and angoras, soft-as-silk Swedish suedes and European man-made washable fibres delight the touch.

One of the leaders of the Swedish fashion industry is diminutive, energetic Margareta Westberg, owner-designer of Tonnie. Her clothes, designed for the young, active woman in sizes 6 through 14, have been well known on the American market for many years. Margareta, who says she designs for the woman who is "like me, a little smaller on the top than on the bottom," says her best-sellers in Europe are also best-sellers here.

Liv Ullmann's costumes from "The Emigrants" were photographed in New York on Margareta's model, Christel Hesselgren, who is studying economics at the University in Stockholm and wants to be a buyer.

Sweden then

Area women attend national meet

Representing the area were. Mrs. Darrell Bowman, Appleton; Mrs. William McInnis, Marion; Mrs. Byron Murken, Oshkosh; Colleen Myers, Appleton, Mrs. Allen Talbot, Neenah; Mrs. Marion Thompson, New London; Mrs. Francis Prast, Menasha, and Mrs. Roger Owen, Shawano Senior Scout participant was Kathy Korth, New London

The group participated in discussions, voted on national proposals, installed newly elected officers and launched a new triennium.

"Today's Vision — Tomorrow's World" is the 1972-75 triennium theme. Mrs. Douglas H. McNeil, national president, gave the opening address, "Tomorrow Begins Tonight." Delegates attended issues dinners with topics ranging from "National and World Issues" by Walter J. Hickel, to "The Year 2,000."

Six major proposals were presented to the delegate body for voting. The four passed were: 1. rewording of the Promises and Laws; 2. lower the age limit of National Council Members to 14; 3. change the size of the National Council from 4,000 to 2,000, and 4 allow girls to become associate members of the Girl Scout movement.

The reworded version of the Promise and Laws — a basic part of the Girl Scout ethical code — amends the Preamble of the Constitution.

A large number of amendments to the Promises and Laws proposal were submitted from the floor. Mrs. Bowman, Fox River Area Girl Scout Council president, submitted the only amendment that passed with a majority vote A point of order ruled Mrs. Bowman's amendment out since a two-thirds majority was needed for passage of a proposal of this nature.

The new version of the Promises and Laws is the result of a three-year study by a 10-member task force, designated to ascertain the contemporary relevance of the traditional wording. Based on troop sampling findings, representing more than 80,000 girls, the amended rewording was prepared for the 1972 National Council meeting.

Budget is topic of Benefit Circle

The budget for the coming year was presented by the co-chairmen of the finance committee, Mrs. Ray Durkee and Mrs. Donald Brown, when Benefit Circle of The King's Daughters met recently at the home of Mrs. Edward R. Bollenbeck. Approved were donations to Robert Murphy, a kidney patient, and to Winnebago State Hospital, for Christmas. Members were asked to bring gifts to the November meeting for the Outagamie County Health Service

Mrs. John R. Rosebush, president, asked for reports on the sale of cookbooks two and three and Mrs. John Kloehn expressed appreciation for the donation to the Appleton Study Committee.

Safety hints on escalators

Although escalator accidents account for fewer than 1,000 reported accidents each year, they can be serious with mangling, amputating injuries. The machinery of an escalator has been developed to a high degree of safety; however, accidents do happen due to the actions of the public, reports the National Safety Council.

Most escalator accidents involve falling or getting caught, and they usually happen to children up to six years of age and adults 55 years and older. For the most part, the children get caught and the adults fall, the council says.

Falls, it explains, generally occur when people lose their balance because of the moving platform and fail to steady themselves by using the handrail. Packages often prevent a shopper from holding on properly, a conversation may divert one's attention, a parent may turn too quickly to watch a child on another step. These people lose their balance and fall.

The most severe injuries are due to people getting caught in the mechanism — usually being pulled in by clothing. Feet and toes get caught because they are drawn into the pinch points. Next time you ride an escalator be aware that it is only as safe as you are careful, the council warns.

Congressional, legislative races spur interest locally

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent staff writer

Fox Valley voters will send a new 8th District congressman to Washington and choose a new state senator and a new Assembly representative in Tuesday's elections, while also settling contests between numerous incumbents and their challengers.

The battles for seats where the incumbent has for one reason or another stepped down have generally been hard-fought by both sides, while incumbents in other districts have tended to campaign little despite some energetic opposition attempts to unseat them.

The 8th District congressional race has seen a media blitz studded with appearances by big-name national leaders from both parties pitching for the candidates.

State Rep. Harold Froehlich of Appleton has had leading Republicans from Vice President Spiro Agnew on down campaigning personally for him in the district.

The Rev. Robert Cornell of De Pere countered with an appearance by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Cornell and Froehlich also have been running a high volume of 30-second television campaign ads over Green Bay-based television stations. They include Cornell plugs by Wisconsin Democratic Senators Gaylord Nelson and William Proxmire, and Froehlich support from the retiring 28-year incumbent, Rep. John W. Byrnes of Green Bay.

The only state legislative race that has produced a similar outpouring of television advertising is the 2nd Senate District contest between Democrat James DeLorme of De Pere and Republican Thomas Petri of rural Fond du Lac.

The 2nd District seat is being vacated by Sen. Myron Lotto of rural Green Bay, who was an unsuccessful Republican primary candidate for 8th District congressman.

Campaign spending has been a peripheral issue in that race, with the two candidates otherwise sticking close to their respective party lines on state legislative issues.

DeLorme recently attacked Petri's out-of-state financial support, including substantial contributions from New York and Washington sources. Petri, who was an aide on a special White House task force staff before returning to Wisconsin, said the out-of-state funds were from friends he had made while on the Washington assignment.

Both sides issued lists of Petri campaign contributors and amounts, but the list produced by a group supporting DeLorme and containing the heaviest amount of out-of-state money covered the primary election period, while Petri produced a list of more recent contributions which ran heavily to in-state donations.

The third race in which newcomers are seeking the seat of an incumbent is in Appleton's 42nd Assembly District, where Froehlich's congressional candidacy removed him from the running after five consecutive two-year terms.

The Republican entrant is Realtor Toby Roth, and the Democratic candidate is Thomas Lonsway, manager of a local cooperative.

Both candidates have waged extensive door-to-door campaigns, distributing leaflets through periodic canvassing expeditions by volunteers.

Lonsway also borrowed a page from the successful campaign tactics of Mayor James Sutherland last spring, distributing a questionnaire and later releasing the results.

Both candidates also have rung doorbells in person, and who has done more face-to-face electioneering is a question that gets a different response, depending on which side is asked. Both candidates are aware that Froehlich placed heavy stress on personal campaigning in his early campaigns.

Based on the energy and apparent financial output by candidates and $12 million in highway work slated for Valley

Highway construction projects totaling nearly $12 million are scheduled for the four-county Fox Valley area during 1973, a state division of Highways report indicated.

The projects include $9 million for Winnebago County, $1.45 million for Outagamie County, $460,000 for Calumet County and $500,000 for Waupaca County.

The major projects include $4.97 million for partial financing of the Little Lake Butte Des Morts bridge north of Menasha's Ninth Street and $1.16 million for widening W. College Avenue from Linwood Street to Bluemound Road.

The College Avenue project is scheduled to be completed late in the fall of 1974 and the bridge project, including the interchange on U.S. 41 feeding and receiving bridge traffic, in 1975.

Two other projects include the repaving of State 47 from Black Creek to Bonduel and of State 55 from Kaukauna to State 151 in Calumet County. Both are scheduled to be completed late next summer.

A third major project area is the continued upgrading of 41 to limited access freeway standards. Some $500,000 is to be spent for limiting access by adding service roads from 150 west of Neenah north to 125.

The limited access work on 41 from State 44 north through the Fox Cities will be completed in 1975, a highway division District 3 spokesman said. No construction work is planned in Outgamie along 41, he said, adding the access to establishments off 41 between Outagamie County Trunk BB and 125 would be at the BB and 125 interchanges.

Most of the money for the projects listed in the 1973 program will be state funds, although some federal funds will be available for 41 related projects and some local funds for other projects.

In Outagamie, the W. College Avenue (State 125) widening involves a 1.3-mile stretch. The viaduct just west of Linwood also will be widened to four lanes.

The State 55 project involves 1.5 miles in Outagamie and will cost $40,000. The remainder of the 55 resurfacing will be 18.3 miles in Calumet and cost $460,000. Both will be state funded.

The State 47 repaving project involves 7.6 miles in Outagamie and will cost $250,000. The remainder will be 9.8 miles in Shawano County to Bonduel for the same cost. Again, the state will pay the bill.

The state originally had intended to include the Lawe Street widening in its projects and listed $300,000 as its cost. This was altered when the widening idea was dropped, eliminating it from the state program.

In Winnebago, the bridge construction will involve bid-letting in April for part of the span and later bid-lettings for the rest.

Other Winnebago projects include the 41 access limitation, and resurfacing of State 110 for 22.4 miles from 41 to the north county line and State 21 for 2.04 miles from Omro to the west county line. The 110 project will cost 1700,000 and the 21 project 150,000, both through state funds.

In Waupaca County, 4.4 miles of State 22 from State 54 to Manawa will be resurfaced at a cost of $272,000. Some $230,000 also is planned for right-of-way acquisition in the county.

The total 1973 state highway program will cost $153 million, about $25 million less than the 1972 program. Robert T. Huber, Madison, division chairman, said the program was being reduced because of continuing holdbacks of federal aid appropriations and a decrease in state funds available for construction after meeting requirements of highway and bridge bonding.

There would be further reductions if Congress fails to pass a new highway act when it convenes in January, he added.

Huber listed the Little Lake Butte des Morts project as one of the major ones in the state. Others included the Allouez-Ashwaubenon bridge and 41 work in Brown County.

The 1973 program differs from previous ones in that it lists construction starts rather than those for which bids would be solicited but not necessarily started. It also includes funds for purchasing right-o-way this year, Huber said.

He added that comparisons still are possible. These show funds allotted for state trunk highways and federal aid urban off-system projects down $47.2 million; interstate system down $5.7 million, and the off-state highway, federal aid projects, up $4.4 million.

Appleton's personnel chief quits

Appleton city personnel director Gerald Lang today submitted his resignation to Mayor James Sutherland, effective Dec. 2.

Lang said he is quitting the Appleton post he has held the past 2½ years to take the post of personnel director for Winnebago County effective Dec. 6.

Sutherland said Lang "will be a hard man to replace," and added that a search for a successor will begin immediately.

The city is engaged in negotiations with several municipal employe bargaining units, and at present is without a contract with any of the several unions.

Lang said in his letter of resignation that he leaves "with regret but also with a sense of anticipation." He said the Winnebago County job "offers an opportunity for advancement which I cannot refuse."

Lang's salary in his new job reportedly will be substantially higher than his current $14,805 per year salary in Appleton, but the exact sum was not immediately available.

He is the city's third personnel director since the job was created several years ago. The personnel director is the chief negotiator for the city with the employe bargaining groups.

Sutherland said Lang has done a fine job for the city in a position of far greater importance to the community than most people realize. "He will be a hard man to replace and we are sorry to see him leave."

The search for a replacement will be completed "as quickly as possible consistent with the objective of finding the best available talent," Sutherland said.

$9.9 million for direct services

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Direct services to people account for nearly two-thirds of the spending in Outagamie County. For 1973, this means that $9.9 million of the $15.8 million total budget request is earmarked for those services.

The bulk of that amount, $6.55 million, is for social services. Another $1.9 million is for services to the mentally ill. The remaining $1.43 million is for health services, including the Golden age home, general hospital, sanatorium and county nurse.

The social services spending proposal is up $1.38 million over what had been budgeted for the current year. However, 1972 expenditures are expected to exceed the budgeted amounts by more than $550,000.

Medical costs are blamed for much of the rapid increase in the social services budget. For 1973, the medical part of the budget is estimated in excess of $3 million.

Within social services, administration is estimated at $1.07 million. This is about $100,000 less than the current budget.

Administration is sort of a catchall for everything that doesn't fit into one of the other categories. In addition to personnel costs, all child services and all purchase of care services are included. These items account for nearly half of the administration budget.

Two categories with social services account for almost all of the increase. They are aid to the disabled and aid to families with dependent children.

Including medical costs, aid to the disabled is projected at $857,455 for 1973, an increase of $300,000 over the current budget and $200,000 over what is now actually expected to be spent.

On the revenue side, aids are projected at $645,235, up $200,000 over this year.

For AFDC, 1973 costs, including medical, are estimated at $2.67 million, up $900,000 from the current budget. However, AFDC costs for the year are expected to overrun the budget by nearly $700,000.

AFDC revenues for 1973 are estimated at $2 million, up $700,000 from 1972 budgeted figures.

Other categories in social services are old age assistance, county at large cases and aid to the blind.

Services to the mentally ill include operation of the county health center and the cost of maintaining county residents who are in mental hospitals outside the county.

For 1973 the health center budget is $1.7 million, an increase of $350,000 over the current budget. However, actual 1972 costs are expected to exceed the budget by $250,000. Most of the overrun is the result of program changes during the year and some underestimations in other costs.

Projected 1973 revenues are $1,500,000, up $135,000 from this year.

Cost of county residents in out of county institutions is estimated at $225,000, down $7,000 from this year.

The biggest budget in the health services category is for the Golden Age Home. This is projected at $783,848 for 1973, an increase of $60,000 over the current year. Revenues are projected at $560,000 up $30,000.

County Executive Alvin Woehler said the Golden Age Home and health center figures could fluctuate somewhat if the state goes ahead during the year to redefine mental patient status. This could result in a reduction in the number of patients classified as mental patients and an increase in the number of residents in the Golden Age Home.

The general hospital section at Riverview Sanatorium also shows a budget increase of from $333,185 to

Hearings on city budget start tonight

Finance committee hearings on Mayor James Sutherland's proposed executive budget for 1973 begin tonight.

Finance Director Reynold Running announced that the city council's finance committee will meet with department heads at 7 p.m. and will hold a second session at 7 p.m. Wednesday to review departmental budgets not included in tonight's review.

A third session will be held Thursday if the first two meetings fail to complete the committee's scrutiny of all budgets.

Sutherland presented his budget recommendations last Wednesday to the council, calling for spending totalling slightly above $30 million next year, with a tax rate decrease of about 1 per cent in the Outagamie County portion of the city and a rate boost of about 2 per cent in the Calumet County part of the South Side.

Federal revenue sharing totalling more than $500,000 this year and $1.5 million next year is the reason the tax rate can be reduced in Outagamie, where 95 per cent of the city's taxable property is located.

Budget items to be considered tongiht include budgets for the city clerk, elections, central services, official printing, health, city treasurer, city assessor, personnel, mayor's office, finance department, employe insurance and reitrement, police department, fire department, welfare department, city planning and industrial development

The Wednesday session will review budgets for the city attorney, inspection department, street lighting, traffic control, public works department, parks and recreation, library and City Hall.

The Appleton Federation of Labor Unions will provide rides to the polls for voters who do not have transportation to their polling place.

The number to call is 731-2055.

Someone will be at this number all day Tuesday.

Teacher contract talks to begin

With fewer than two months before their recently signed calendar 1972 contract expires, the Appleton teachers have agreed to begin formal talks with the board of education Tuesday afternoon.

The first negotiation session for the calendar 1973 master contract is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. in the board of education room. It is anticipated that at that time proposals will be officially exchanged.

The teachers reportedly had their requests ready last week, although none have been made public. They apparently will seek more involvement in curriculum decisions and ask for financial improvements.

The calendar 1972 master contract was settled this past summer after over a year of talks. The master includes the salary schedule and contract language for all teachers.

The late start in the 1973 talks has caused some budgeting problems for the board which again this year had to approve a budget request to the Fiscal Control Board without knowing definitely what the 1973 teacher costs would be.

This year the teachers, represented by the Appleton Education Association, will have a new legal counsel at the bargaining table. Appleton attorney Dennis Herrling has been hired to replace Gordon Myse, who has been named Circuit Judge.

Herrling said the first meeting would be a closed session when the two sides would discuss whether to give the public any information about bargaining. He said he personally believed all negotiations should be closed.

In the past, the initial session was opened temporarily to the press when the proposals were revealed and explained.

The board's chief negotiator will be John Spindler1 Manitowoc attorney who bargained for public schools during the last session.

No cash award from ruling on malpractice

W. S. Patterson Co will not receive a cash award of $38,000 resulting from a Circuit Court jury finding in the firm's suit against its accountants, as indicated in a story in Saturday's Post-Crescent.

The plaintiff Patterson company had sought $1 million in damages, claiming malpractice by accountants Push, Larson, Seifert & Co., Maynard Kunschke and Continental Casualty Co. Kunschke was the senior accountant in charge of the Patterson account and Continental Casualty was the insurance carrier for the accountants.

The jury found in favor of the accountants, placing their negligence at 28 per cent and set the plaintiff Patterson's at 72 per cent. Under Wisconsin's comparative negligence law, the defendant must be determined to have been more than 50 per cent negligent before a financial award is made.

Before the case is closed, the judge will rule on the jury's findings. His application of the finding to the law will be issued next month.

Patterson had charged that the accounting firm had misrepresented the Patterson financial position through reports and accounting, showing profits where there had actually been losses. Patterson contended that it made business decisions based on these reports and suffered financial losses as a result.

General strike ends in Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Snarls of commuter traffic and white-coated clerks sweeping unshuttered store fronts clean signaled the end today of Chile's worst strike.

The capital's multicolored buses were overflowing once more, and the yellow-tiled sidewalks downtown bustled with shoppers and office workers.

"This is a moment of triumph for Chile's democratic labor movement We paralyzed the country for 27 days," shouted Leon Vilarin, head of the National Labor Command as he urged striking workers to go back to their jobs in a radio speech Sunday night.

Marxist President Salvador Allende's government gave in to some—but not all—of the strikers' demands. The truce temporarily ended Chile's most serious internal crisis since Allende was elected two years ago.

All the strike leaders credited the new interior minister, Gen. Carlos Prats, for leading both sides to a solution. Allende named Prats, who had been the army commander, to the cabinet Thursday in a move to appease opponents of his leftist regime.

Government sources said Allende will leave No 17 on a two-week trip to Cuba, Mexico and the United Nations in New York. This will leave Prats, the No. 2 man in the government, in charge and provide a further cooling off period.

The strikers had included truckers, shopkeepers, small farmers, white collar workers, doctors, lawyers, teachers, airline pilots, ship crewmen and high school students.

They were opposed to Allende's drive to turn Chile into a socialist state. The work stoppages led to food shortages, gasoline rationing, street fights between Marxists and anti-Marxists and scattered bombings of power poles and railroad tracks.

A modified form of martial law had been declared in most of the country, and army tanks had to keep order several times. In Santiago, the capital, the army lifted the emergency conditions Sunday night and abolished a midnight-to-dawn curfew.

"Suspending the strike doesn't mean canceling it," cautioned Rafael Cumsille, president of Chile's Small Business confederation. "The Labor Command will remain on the alert to make sure the government's promises are carried out."

Here is what the government promised the strikers.

1. Not to put Chile's trucking industry under state control and to suspend plans for a government trucking company in the far southern province of Aysen. Vilarin's truckers' union started the strikes.

2. To draft laws spelling out the role of small businessmen in Chile's brand of socialism and guarantee them certain rights.

3. Not to take over the only remaining large private wholesale and distribution firm left in the country.

4. To give back private businesses and property taken over or requisitioned during the strike and to drop criminal charges against union leaders

5. No reprisals—either against strikers or those who opposed the strike.

timore, said the North Vietnamese now have confirmed the statement with which he started off the campaign—that Nixon "blew" a chance to end the war four years ago. "Nixon says he won't be stampeded into peace," the candidate said. "We say we won't be buffaloed into continuing the war."

Agnew's only scheduled Sunday appearance was canceled when he, like McGovern, refused to cross picket lines by union technicians, for an appearance on CBS' "Face the Nation." The vice president had been scheduled to appear from Washington; McGovern, separately, from St. Louis.

Two public-opinion pollsters said, meanwhile, that McGovern is closing some of the gap between himself and Nixon. Neither predicted a McGovern victory, however, in separate interviews on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

Daniel Yankelovich predicted Nixon will win by what he called "a little landslide" which he defined as between 55 per cent and the 61 per cent achieved by former President Lyndon B. Johnson against Barry Goldwater in 1964.

Louis Harris, declining to make a prediction of a landslide in what he called a "year of volatility," said McGovern might have a chance if Nixon dropped his low-key campaigning "and went out stumping in a different style ... slashing out at McGovern personally." He agreed this is unlikely.

The final pre-election Harris poll, released today, gave Nixon 59 per cent, McGovern 35 per cent, and 6 per cent undecided. That was four points better than McGovern did in a late-October Harris Survey.

Yankelovich and Harris said uncertainty over Vietnam peace prospects was a factor in McGovern's apparent gain. "If there is no settlement before election day," Harris said, "we would expect to see some kind of return to a narrowing lead."

McGovern has maintained that the polls have failed to register his momentum and that pollsters would have "the reddest faces in the nation" after Tuesday.

When Mr. and Mrs. Robert Buclaw of Eldridge, Iowa, presented the senator with a puppy during an airport stop Sunday at Moline, Ill., McGovern named him "Upset" and his wife Eleanor declared "his new home will be the White House."

John B. Connally, head of Democrats for Nixon, said there won't be any upset. He said he expects 20 million Democrats to support Nixon.

But Connally, Nixon's former Treasury secretary, said he doubts the Democrats-for-Nixon effort will preclude permanent defection by conservative Democrats into the Republican camp.

And he said he has dismissed speculation that his organization would be held responsible if a big Nixon victory failed to give Republicans control of Congress.

Meanwhile, Rep. John Schmitz, American party presidential nominee, predicted in Escondido, Calif., that the number of votes he receives Tuesday will shock the nation. "We're going to sober them up and hit them in the face with a dash of cold water," he said.

Schmitz says his party gives Americans a real choice because Democrats and Republicans hold similar totalitarian socialist tendencies.

With the polls predicting a GOP presidential victory, most of Nixon's campaigning in the past few days has been directed toward the Republican effort to pick up the five-seat gain needed to win control of the Senate for the first time since 1955.

Of the 33 seats being contested Tuesday, 19 are held by the Republicans, 14 by the Democrats.

Republican strategists indicate their gains might fall just short of the needed 50 seats.

The once-solidly Democratic Deep South, where the absence of 1968 independent candidate George C. Wallace could trigger a Nixon sweep, has become a major Senate battleground with Republicans hopeful of taking over Democratic seats in Virginia, North Carolina, Alabama and Georgia.

Democrats say they have a chance to oust Republican Sen. John G. Tower of Texas and to win the seat of retiring GOP Sen. John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky.

Outside the South, Republicans are making their strongest bids against Democratic Sens. Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island and Thomas J. McIntyre of New Hampshire and for the New Mexico and Oklahoma seats where Democrats retired.

Democrats, on the other hand, think they can pick up the seat of ailing GOP Sen. Carl E. Mundt in McGovern's home state of South Dakota, and have hopes of unseating Republican Sens. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, J. Caleb Boggs of Delaware and Robert Griffin of Michigan. They also hope for a pickup in Idaho.

House results are expected to be influenced by both the size of the Nixon vote and a drive for split tickets by anti-McGovern Democrats. Reapportionment may also be a factor, helping the Democrats in California but hurting them in New York and Illinois.

The current Democratic House advantage, with three seats vacant, is 255 to 177. This means Republicans would need a 41-seat pickup to win control. GOP strategists predict a gain of 26, Democrats say it is more likely to be in the 12-15 range.

Rogers repeats forecast for more peace talks

BY R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers predicts that secret peace talks with the North Vietnamese will resume in the near future, but that a final agreement on a Vietnam cease-fire probably is "several weeks" away.

The North Vietnamese chief negotiator, Xuan Thuy, said, meanwhile, that the Communists would agree to another "final" meeting if conditions are right. "The question is seriousness" on the part of the United States, he added.

While indications mounted that negotiations would soon be resumed, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird acknowledged that the United States is speeding up deliveries of military equipment to South Vietnam.

Laird said this would "enhance negotiations."

Rogers said Sunday that the United States has been in contact with the North Vietnamese through diplomatic channels, "and I have every reason to think that the negotiations in the private channels will resume in the near future."

He was interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Rogers repeated past statements of the administration that the basic agreement has been reached. However, he said "one more series of meetings" is needed to resolve "some ambiguities" and mentioned three.

He said they include a definition of the role of a joint council to administer the cease-fire and supervise elections; the timetable for positioning of an international force to supervise the cease-fire, and the question of North Vietnamese troops remaining in the South.

One of the major objections raised by the South Vietnamese government of President Nguyen Van Thieu to the tentative cease-fire agreement is that it makes no provision for withdrawal of Northern troops from the South.

"That certainly is a subject for discussion, yes," Rogers said, "but not necessarily in terms of redrafting the agreement."

Asked when final agreement is likely, Rogers said: "I think it would be several weeks. Whether it runs into more than that I am not sure." He added he has "no doubt, though, about the outcome."

The secretary of State also said he thinks it is unfair to consider Thieu as the lone "villain" blocking the tentative agreement reached between the United States and the North Vietnamese in Paris Oct. 8.

Thieu has made "some points that we think are valid and we think that when we discuss these points with the North Vietnamese that we can work out accommodations."

Thuy said in an interview in Sunday's New York Times that if, in another meeting, "the U.S. agrees and then proposes more changes, it would be very difficult to settle things."

Bulgarian plane believed down

VIENNA (AP)—A Bulgarian airliner with 33 persons aboard is assumed to have crashed in dense fog in southern Bulgaria, and there has been no word of survivors.

BTA, the Bulgarian news agency, said the Ilyushin 14 was on an hour's flight Saturday from Burgas, on the Black Sea, to Sofia but was diverted to Plovdiv because of fog.

The report said the plane was seen flying low over a village near Plovdiv but continued on toward the southwest and disappeared into the fog.

Town public hearing on new land use map

NEENAH — One of the most important public hearings ever held in the Town of Neenah is scheduled for tonight when townspeople will get their first peek at the new land use map as prepared by the town plan commission.

The map, which is the result of extensive rezoning within the town, has been under study for many months, according to Clarence Kunde, plan commission chairman.

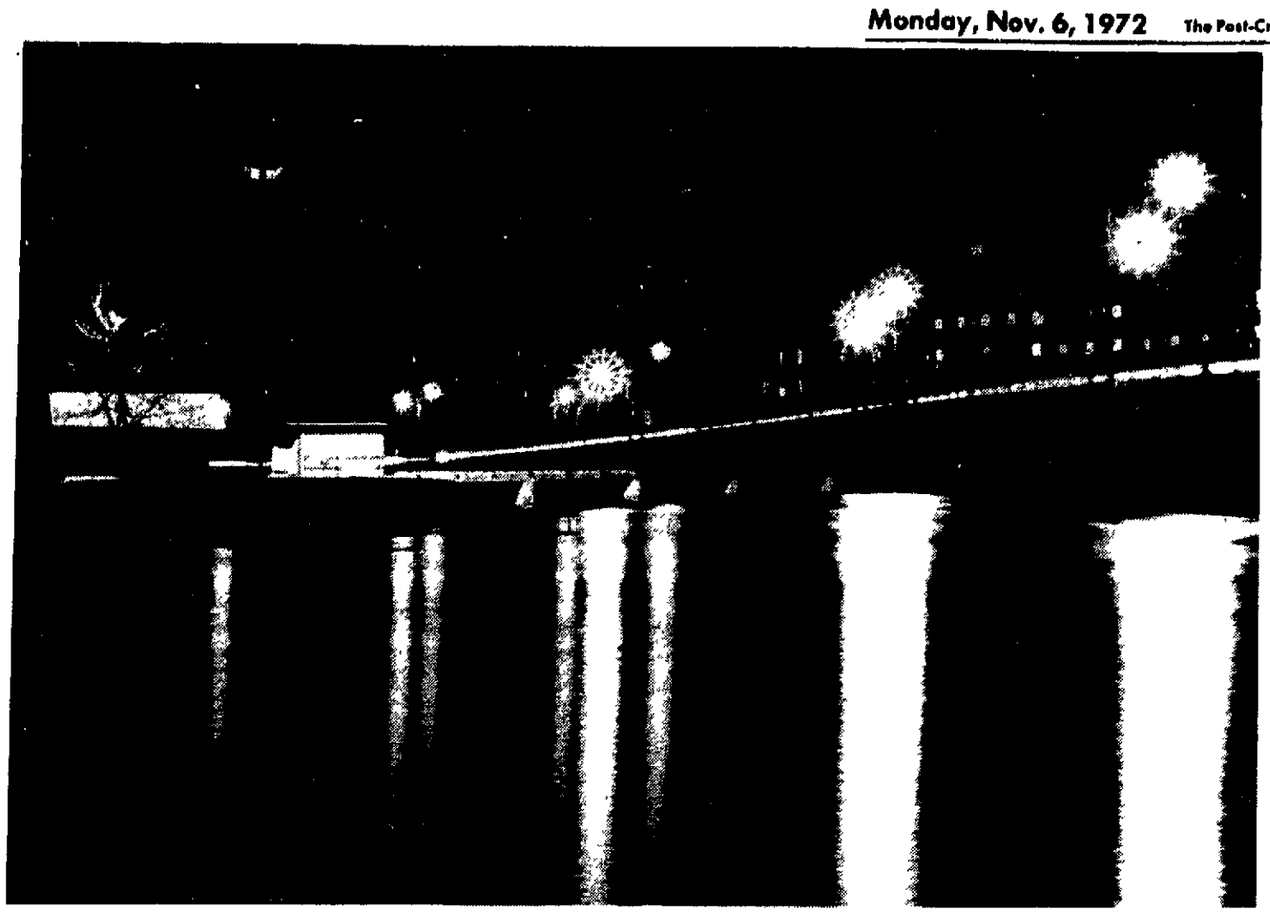
It is, he said, not to be confused with alterations being made in the town to include conservancy districts. Changes here will be incorporated into a shoreland zoning ordinance, and include consideration of watershed areas, the Neenah slough and the like.

Kunde said persons could get specific answers on zoning matters to pieces of property which they own in the town tonight.

If the proposed land use map is okayed, the town would then petition the county to make it the official map, Kunde said. The last official Town of Neenah map of record was prepared in 1949 or 1950, he said. The new version will incoporate many changes made since then.

For example, Kunde said, the new map includes "picking up areas that have been residential but have been in an agricultural area." One purpose of the new version is to unify areas for specific purposes, such as residential areas that might be served by a single school, he observed.

"We want to see the people's reaction to it," he said.



A guiding light

Lights have been installed at the Neenah dam as a safety measure to alert boaters to steer clear of the five gates. Besides the dam, the light will illuminate the life line which will be installed at the Oak Street bridge this winter to give boaters something to grab in case they get caught in the current when the gates are open. The life line will be installed by the city and the lights were put up by the Neenah-Menasha Water Power Co. (News-Record Photo by Copper VanderWalker)

Twin City Fund drive tops goal

NEENAH-MENASHA — For the fourth time in the last five years the Community Chest has exceeded its campaign goal.

With a 6.4 per cent increase over last year's giving, the chest has raised a record $376,832. The goal for this year was $375,700.

Harry J. Sheerin, 1972 general campaign chairman, said today, "On behalf of all of us who have worked on the drive, may I offer our heartfelt gratitude to the wonderful folks in the Twin Cities who have made the 1972 campaign another smashing success."

Sheerin added that it is due to the support of the people in Neenah and Menasha that the beneficial services provided by the 16 Chest-sponsored agencies will be assured during 1973.

Money raised in this year's campaign was 5.5 per cent greaer than has ever been attained in the 25-year history of the Twin Cities Community Chest.

Ned Galloway, Community Chest president, said, "The entire campaign team, quarterbacked by Harry Sheerin, deserves our thanks for their hard work in scoring a record dollar total, more than $22,000 over last year's contributions."

Galloway noted, "All of us should be proud to be a part of this effort."

Four divisions of the Chest campaign exceeded 100 per cent of their goals during this year's drive. The divisions are large industry employes at $182,819, or 104.5 per cent; public-civic at $18,046, or 100.3 per cent; mercantile at $7,303, or 100 per cent, and national firms at $866, or 124 per cent.

Other divisions and their totals are special gifts at $30,772 or 88 per cent; professional at $13,266, or 88 per cent; small industry at $4,859, or 93 per cent; construction at $3,339, or 83 per cent; service at $2,788 or 77 per cent; commercial at $2,681, or 89 per cent and general at $2,510, or 78 per cent.

Wesley Urch, executive director of the Community Chest, stated that this year is the 18th time in the history of the Chest that goals have been successfully reached in Neenah and Menasha.

Urch also pointed out that this year is the earliest that a drive has been completed in the Twin Cities.

Oak trees chopped down

OSHKOSH — Two oak trees that environmentalists tried to save near the courthouse were leveled Saturday morning.

An elm, suspected of having Dutch Elm disease, was also chopped down.

Their removal is the first step in expansion of the parking lot around the courthouse, using property which the Winnebago County board bought last spring.

It was hoped that 75 additional parking stalls could be added to the present lot, which frequently experiences cramped conditions.

The county board, against the advice of two experts and some 2,000 persons who signed a petition, authorized cutting down the trees in October.

At the official county level, the fight to save the oak trees was led by Penny Christenson, Town of Oshkosh, a freshman supervisor on the county board. She figured prominently in the formation of a group called STOP (Save the Oaks, Please) and pleaded with a committee, the buildings, grounds and parks panel of which she is a member, to reconsider.

Plans for an injunction banning the leveling of the trees were abandoned last week after an attorney advised STOP that the Wisconsin Environmental Policy Act wouldn't apply to the local situation.

Steffens hits delinquency project

MENASHA — City Attorney Richard Steffens has criticized the proposed preventative delinquency research project to be conducted at Banta Elementary School.

Steffens' opinion was in response to a request by Mayor James Adams as to whether he should sign a contract with the Family Service Association — the sponsoring agency of the project.

Steffens stated that common council approval was necessary before Adams could sign the contract. Robert Gellert, executive director of Family Service and author of the research project, had told the board of education that council approval was not necessary.

Steffens also questioned whether names of delinquent children could be obtained legally. He noted that the police department "has taken the position that when Mr. Gellert approached them as to the names of these children of these families in the school that they could not do so under state laws."

In order to carry out the project, a social worker would have to acquire the names of children who have had contact with the police.

Steffens stated that it was his understanding that Judge Sarres of the juvenile court refused to cooperate because of the question of whether names of delinquent children could be legally released.

Steffens also questioned the availability of 1972 federal funds for the project. He noted that there was "no question that the second year's fund will have to be paid from the municipal treasury."

Steffens recommended that the council review a letter from Police Chief Lester Clark which opposes the application for funds.

Police & fire beat

OSHKOSH — The state fire marshal has been called to investigate the cause of a fire early Sunday that extensively damaged the Speak-Easy Tavern, a go-go bar just west of here.

The rear of the building was gutted in the fire, and the rest of the building was heavily damaged by heat, smoke and water. The fire apparently started in the vicinity of the back entrance.

James R. Manion, Oshkosh, owner of the business, said the contents were not covered by insurance.

He told sheriff's officers that he had left the building about 1:15 a.m. An officer found everything in order when he checked the building at about 1:30 a.m., but saw flames and smoke coming from the rear portion when he checked again an hour later. The Town of Algoma Fire Department was called to the scene at 2:32 a.m.

Menasha council to consider '73 budget

MENASHA — A proposed 1973 city budget and tax rate, three public hearings, two applications for tavern licenses and the latest word on the demolition of the old Menasha ballpark are what is in store for aldermen scheduled to attend a host of meetings tonight.

The budget, of course, is the big item. But aldermen will probably not begin to review it tonight because of the other business. They may schedule meetings on it for later this week or next week.

City officials declined to give the budget and tax rate figures, but there are indications that a large dose of state aids and federal revenue sharing programmed for 1973 could keep it at only a slight increase over 1972.

Aldermen will get a day off Tuesday, because of the county, state and national elections. The common council meeting regularly scheduled for Tuesday will be held Wednesday, instead.

Vote early to avoid the rush

Predicting a 90 per cent turnout of Appleton's 28,704 registered voters for Tuesday's elections, City Clerk Elden Broehm today urged voters who can to vote early and avoid the last-minute rush.

Polls are open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., but the rush period is between 4 and 7 p.m., according to Broehm.

He said consideration should be shown to working people who can vote only during those hours, and those who can vote early should.

A 90 per cent turnout would be a total of 25,833 voters. Broehm based his prediction on the high number of absentee ballots that have already been marked and left with his office to be opened. There are 1,400 absentee ballots cast in this election.

Area's bishops preparing for special meetings

GREEN BAY — The bishop and auxiliary bishop of the Green Bay Diocese will attend separate meetings next week.

The Most Rev. Aloysius Wycislo will leave for Rome this week for a meeting of ecumenical commissions representatives to discuss the progress of dialogues with other denominations throughout the world.

The Most. Rev. Mark Schmitt, auxiliary, will attend the meeting of the U.S. bishops in Washington, D.C. Nov. 13 through 17. Considered will be issues ranging from the implementation of the recent Vatican decrees on minor orders to Catholic participation in the U.S. bicentennial observance in 1976.

Wycislo is a member of the American Bishops' Commission on Ecumenical and Inter-religious Affairs as well as of the American dialogue committee with the Anglicans, and is the official representative of the American hierarchy.

The Rome session runs from Nov. 15 through 22.

Revenue for the general hospital is estimated at $360,105, an increase of $4,600 over the current budget.

The sanatorium section budget just about has been cut in half as a number of tuberculosis resident patients continue to drop. The budget is projected at $29,111, compared to $57,087 for the current year. Revenue is estimated at $23,799, down from $34,417.

As the number of tuberculosis patients in the sanatorium declines, the use of out-patient treatment increases. The budget for the out-patient dispensary for 1973 is proposed at $63,267, an increase of $6,000 over this year. Dispensary revenues are estimated at $52,510, up more than $15,000.

Budget for the county nurse's office is $36,667, an increase of $6,000 with almost all of the increase coming in personnel costs. The county nurse now provides nursing service to the City of Kaukauna in addition to its former service areas.

The other major budget in health services is for the Community Guidance Center. For 1973 this is estimated at $100,224, up $23,000. The increase reflects the addition of more professional staff during the year. Revenues account for one half of the cost.

Auto salvage firm in Green Bay nearly destroyed by blaze

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Fire destroyed the office, shop area and warehouse of the Wisconsin-Michigan Auto Salvage Co., on Green Bay's West Side Sunday night.

No injuries were reported in the fire, which did an estimated $200,000 damage to the auto parts business.

The blaze was spotted by a Green Bay police officer about 11 p.m. Firefighters still were at the scene after dawn today.

They were hampered in battling the fire, officers said, because of flareups caused by exploding tanks of acetylene, oxygen and oil stored in the building.

Sentencing set for Marvin Rohl

MANITOWOC, Wis. (AP) — Sentencing for Marvin Rohl, 19, of Manitowoc, who was convicted of third degree murder, arson and robbery during the weekend, has been scheduled Dec. 11 by Manitowoc County Circuit Court Judge James Martineau.

The jury reached its verdict Saturday after 12 hours of deliberation in connection with the July 9 death of Mary Glander, 83, of Manitowoc, and the judge ordered a presentence investigation.

Rohl was accused of beating Mrs. Glander, setting fire to her apartment and robbing her of a small amount of cash.

their organizations in each of the three districts where the incumbent is stepping down, the outcome could be close.

The ultimate deciding factors may include such things as the coattail effect of the two major-party presidential candidates and the lack of statewide contests including a race for the governorship.

In the legislative races, the record of Gov. Patrick Lucey and his Democratic state administration, and the Democrat-controlled Assembly, have been focal points of candidates on both sides.

In other Fox Valley area contests, a veteran Republican state senator, an incumbent GOP Assembly representative and a Democratic Assembly incumbent are facing opposition.

Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, has waged a token campaign to defend his seat against Appleton Democrat Michael Mack, who has attacked the incumbent on a variety of issues ranging from the tax relief topic that has figured highly in all races to Lorge's campaign spending.

State Rep. Ervin Conradt, R-Shiocton, has similarly ignored the Democratic challenge from Miss Cynthia Thorpe of Hortonville, a recent University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh graduate.

In the southeastern corner of Outagamie County and extending to southern Brown County, State Rep. William Rogers, D-Kaukauna, is being challenged by Dennis Satola, leader of a Republican college student organization.

The American Party has fielded candidates in two local races, entering Clyde Bunker of Green Bay in the 8th District congressional contest and Edward Duquaine in the 2nd District Senate race. Both candidates won spots on the ballot through write-in votes in the September primary, but their presence has been all but unnoticed amidst the electioneering of their major-party rivals.

Marbles required for memo holder

BY CAPPY DICK

A colorful holder for sheets of memo paper is a fun-project that can be completed in a couple of hours, once the supplies have been gathered together.

sheets which can be withdrawn easily because the gap in the front row of marbles makes it easy to lift a single sheet out without disturbing the whole stack

To make such a tray, obtain two pieces of thick cardboard and glue them together to make a strong base The cardboards should be of dimensions that, after the border of marbles has been installed, will accommodate papers the size you intend to use

Round up enough marbles, all the same size, to form the border Make an indentation for each marble in the top cardboard This can be done by carving a series of shallow holes into which the marbles may be glued as in figure two

Use strong household mending glue to fasten the marbles When the glue has dried the tray is ready for use on your desk

As he strides out onto the stage with powerful bearing, impeccable tails, fierce blue eyes, there is no doubt as to whom the rest of the evening belongs.

No need for a podium. He seems much taller than his 6 feet, 7 inches. His bony body is topped by a massive head, craggy face and an unmanageable shock of iron grey hair.

Armed with only a tiny white stick and two expressive hands, he begins to create music. His body is tense with emotion. No score — he knows when and where each note is to appear.

The music starts. He carves it. He pulls and draws and crushes and spears and tugs and scoops it all out of the instruments, constantly demanding perfection most musicians don't know they have.

At UW-Fox Valley Saturday

Otto-Werner Mueller is an experience. To watch him is a thrill. To be able to hear him perform is unforgettable. People of the Fox Cities will be able to share the electricity of Maestro Mueller when he is guest conductor for the workshop orchestra of the Wisconsin Symphony Orchestra conference in Menasha. The performance, at 2:30 Saturday afternoon in the Fine Arts Theater of the University of Wisconsin Center-Fox Valley, is free and open to the public.

The maestro conducts the University orchestra in Madison and the Waukesha Symphony. He is known widely in Russia, Europe, Canada and the United States. He was a scholarship student in Frankfurt, Germany, on piano, trumpet, viola, composition and conducting. In 1946 he headed the chamber music department of Radio Stuttgart. In 1948 he conducted at the Heidelberg Castle summer festival and started the orchestra at the high school for U.S. military dependents stationed there. In 1951 he moved to Montreal where he worked with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation as conductor, composer and orchestrator.

His recent production of the TV performance of "The Barber of Seville"

Otto-Werner Mueller

received the First International Emmy Award from the U.S. National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. Mueller has studied with Igor Markevitch and has taught at Moscow State Conservatory. He has worked with the Jackson Hole Fine Arts Festival in Wyoming and has organized and headed a school of music in Victoria, B.C., Canada. He is married to Marga Buchert, former singer with the Stuttgart State Opera. They have three sons.

The orchestra will be performing Beethoven's Fifth Symphony and Moussorgsky's "A Night on Bald Mountain."

Colts vs. Patriots tonight

8-10:45 — Channels 11-9 — The Baltimore Colts meet the New England Patriots at Schaefer Stadium in Foxboro, Mass., on NFL Monday Night Football. Frank Gifford, Howard Cosell and Don Meredith report.

6:30-7 — Channel 2 — The Dan Devine Show will feature the head coach of the Packers discussing game films of Sunday's encounter with the San Francisco 49ers at Milwaukee. Roy Boyles is host.

7-8 — Channel 5 — Don Rickles brings his witty, sharp tongue to Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In, playing Baby Spanky, former child star, among other bits. Charlie Callas makes cameo appearances, as do Martin Milner and Kent McCord, who can never get through their bits on this show without breaking up.

8-10 — Channel 5 — This time was reserved for a paid political broadcast but when the money wasn't forthcoming a movie-for-TV was hastily scheduled. It's World Premiere: Magic Carpet and it's a fine opportunity to tour Italy (Rome, Florence, Venice, Sorrento, Naples and Ischia) without leaving home. Filmed in Italy it concerns a tour filled with various American types and has Susan Saint James as a substitute tour guide. Enzo Cerusico (remember the series, My Friend Tony) steals the few scenes he has as a representative of the tour company.

Environmental studies program seminar topic

The environmental studies programs at the Argonne National Laboratory, with particular emphasis on analysis of the ecology of the Great Lakes, will be the topic of a Lawrence University biology seminar at 2:50 p.m. Friday in 201 Stephenson Hall of Science.

Dr. J. S. Marshall of the radiological and environmental sciences division of the Argonne National Laboratory will speak. Marshall is the head of a research group that has been investigating the impact of a variety of factors, including the operation of nuclear power generators, on the ecology of the Great Lakes shoreline. His research has involved him in such studies as the possible and real effects of thermo-pollution produced by the Point Beach nuclear reactor.

All Lawrence biology seminars are open to the public.

Brockington lauds Hunter

Packer offense 'returns'

BY LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent News Service

MILWAUKEE — Many interviews later, John Brockington paused to happily reflect upon "The Return of the Offense."

"We scored 21 points offensively today," he noted with both pride and satisfaction in the midst of a lighthearted Packer dressing room Sunday afternoon. "There's nothing wrong with our offense, once we balance out by throwing the ball.

"I like to run," said the bullish ex Buckeye, somewhat gratuitously in the wake of a 133-yard, three-touchdown performance which spurred the Packers to a 34-24 victory over the San Francisco 49ers, "but you can't just run in this league.

"They'll put those big devils up in front and throw those odd defenses at you, and they can stop the run.

"Scott Hunter's passing in the second half (he was 5-for-7) did it for us this afternoon," he asserted. "I knew we were going to have to balance out in the second half to win."

Coach Dan Devine, a game ball proudly tucked in the crook of his right arm, put it a little differently.

"We got the big play today," he offered in explanation of the Packers' fifth victory, embellished by a 343-yard eruption from an offense which had been forced to settle for one touchdown in the last two games.

Perhaps recalling a pair of 49er touchdown passes to the wraith-like Gene Washington, which made things a big awkward for a time, he appended with an ironic smile, "They got a few, too."

The highly opportune triumph not only ended a two-game losing streak but preserved the Packers' portion of the NFC's Central Division lead, still shared by Detroit's Lions in the wake of a 14-0 win over the Bears, before a capacity gathering of 47,897 customers in County Stadium.

'Very few things'

Execution, rather than variety, had been the Packers' winning formula, Devine said. "The coaches did a good job at halftime. They gave Scott a very few things to think about in the second half.

"They came up with a few runs and a few passes and they stuck with it," he informed with a chuckle, "despite my efforts to foul it up.

"We reduced our original game plan, and it wasn't too big to start with. This may have been our smallest game plan of the year. . .And the most points, right?

"Maybe," he significantly observed, "they go together."

Hunter, who maneuvered the Packers to a pair of vital first downs in the hectic, closing minutes before a scoring runback of an interception by Ken Ellis carried the day, credited the resurgence to collective unflappability.

"We kept our cool today," he said. "And we mixed 'em up real good. The playcalling from the sidelines was excellent."

Reporting he had gone to an audible "only two or three times all day," Hunter insisted, "We just have to hang cool — have confidence in our game — and we can win.

"We were due for that kind of day, anyway, though. We were going to do that kind of scoring, some time or other."

It had come, Hunter added, against "a great defense. . .They're just like Dallas. They just line up in that 4-3 and they play it. They don't try to hide anything."

To their great discomfiture, the Prospectors were in a tight 4-3 — out of which their linebackers poured in a blitz — as Brockington shot the Packers into a 6-0 lead midway through the first quarter on a 48-yard parlay with Hunter.

"It was a third-and-1 situation," he said, "and we sent a wide receiver and a tight end into that area while I went down the middle. I was wide open.

"It was a play action and it froze the linebacker (Frank Nunley). I was just,

'It was no gamble,' Ellis says

Post-Crescent News Service

MILWAUKEE — Ken Ellis, not surprisingly, was positive.

"It was no gamble," said the confident young cornerback. "I was going all the way"

And that, of course, is what he had just done at precisely the right time along County Stadium's eastern sidelines.

Victim of yet another delay en route to the shower, Ellis was in the process of patiently reconstructing his last minute, 28-yard scoring runback with an interception, an effort which had throttled the Forty Niners and maintained the Packers' first place tie with Detroit in the NFC's Central Division.

As may have been divined, Ellis was setting a sportswriter straight on the risk presumably inherent in the maneuver, in which he bolted in front of intended receiver Gene Washington to pilfer a Steve Spurrier pass.

"We knew they had to pass in that situation," he said. "They were down deep in their own territory and there was less than a minute to play.

"On the first play in the series, Washington a quick turnout and the pass was incomplete. Actually, I was looking for the out-and-up pattern when I intercepted, but it didn't come

His spectacular sortie had been the former Southern University flanker's second major contribution to the Packer cause of the afternoon.

Earlier, he had returned a punt 33 yards to set up a second quarter field goal by Chester Marcol, narrowly missing his second scoring runback by that method this season.

'We had the same kind of return on as we did on the one I went all the way on against Detroit," he said, adding with a grin, "except we didn't have the same results today"

His Detroit breakaway, an 80-yard scamper that triggered a 24-23 Packer upset victory, still ranks as the longest punt return of the 1972 season in the National Football League.

"I thought I might have a chance to go all the way again," Ellis said, "until I saw Ted Kwalick out of the corner of my eye. He destroyed any chance I had of doing it.

"The guys," he confided with evident sincerity, "just did a magnificent job of blocking on it."

Acknowledging that he and his fellow defenders had found the Forty Niner passing game a bit hard to handle, Ellis paid tribute to San Francisco quarterback Steve Spurrier.

"You have to give Spurrier credit, and his fine receivers," he said. "You have to remember they're professional, too. They're getting paid to do a job, just like we are.

"That Gene Washington, particularly, is a helluva receiver. He's going to catch touchdown passes on a lot of people."

Lions don't believe in jinxes

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit has a week to think about its "jinx" against upcoming opponent Minnesota, but at the same time the Lions can savor the "jinx" they have going against Chicago.

Minnesota has beaten the Lions nine straight times, but on the other side of the coin Detroit's 14-0 National Football League victory over Chicago Sunday was the ninth in the last 10 tries against the Bears.

"You people keep coming up and telling us there's a jinx, but I don't believe that," Lions Coach Joe Schmidt told reporters later, alluding to next Sunday's game at Minnesota. "You don't mention that Chicago has the same kind of jinx against us."

Jinx or no jinx, the Bears seemed paralyzed against the Lions, whose defense had allowed more points (169) than all but two other teams in the National Conference. The shutout was the first for Detroit since a 20-0 triumph over Green Bay the last game of 1970.

The Packers defeated San Francisco 34-24 Sunday and kept pace with the Lions atop the Central Division with a 5-3 record. Minnesota, a 37-6 victor over New Orleans, climbed to third with a 4-4 mark, while the Bears fell to the cellar at 3-4-1.

"I think we're going to go all the way now," mumbled Schmidt matter-of-factly. "We've got momentum going."

In the other dressing room Chicago Coach Abe Gibron was blaming himself.

"We just weren't sharp," he said. "This loss was my fault. If I can't get the team up for the game it's my fault."

But, "Don't count us out. We'll be back," he cautioned. "It's a shame we had to lose after working so hard."

Gregor ignites Bucks

MILWAUKEE (AP) — For the Philadelphia 76ers, No. 13 was no more unlucky than Nos. 1 through 12.

The 76ers, 0-13 in the National Basketball Association and quickly approaching two league records for futility, lost their latest chance at a victory Sunday night, 131-113 to the Milwaukee Bucks.

For the Bucks, it was a salve to a weekend that began with a 105-104 loss to Phoenix, but for Philadelphia it was just another long night.

"They come, they put out, and they fight as hard as they can," 76ers' Coach Roy Rubin said. "We're trying to keep their morale up."

But the 76ers are near two league records—15 consecutive losses to start a season and 17 consecutive losses overall.

Milwaukee, looking for a solid reserve at forward to spell foul-prone Curtis Perry, found just that Sunday as Gary Gregor came off the bench to score 21 points and nab 15 rebounds.

The 6-5 veteran, traded to the Bucks from Philadelphia just before this season, had totaled just 41 minutes of action in appearances in six Bucks' games before Sunday.

But he played 25 minutes against the 76ers after Perry drew two quick first-quarter fouls, and led Milwaukee's charge from a 26-14 first quarter deficit.

Gregor scored 17 first half points, most of them while the Bucks were outscoring Philadelphia 23-4 to turn the 12-point deficit into a 37-30 lead.

Gregor "played tremendous ball," Bucks' Coach Larry Costello said. "He really has an explosive jump. We had a little talk before the game, and now he understands his position. He's our next big forward after Curtis."

Milwaukee let the 76ers get close once more as two Bucks' errors and eight consecutive Philadelphia points closed the gap to 54-51 wth 1:17 left in the half.

But Milwaukee came right back with eight points, and led 62-53 at intermission.

Bob Dandridge and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar each scored 12 points for the Bucks in the third quarter as Milwaukee opened up huge leads Only Fred Carter, who finished with 29 points, and Manny Leaks, who totaled 19, did much offensive damage for the 76ers in the period.

Dandridge led Milwaukee with 26 points, Abdul-Jabbar added 22 and Jon McGlocklin had 21. John Block and LeRoy Ellis each scored 22 for the 76ers.

Costello was nearly elated with the triumph that lifted the Bucks to 9-2 in the Midwest Division.

"We did some things tonight we know we're capable of doing," Costello said. "It's the best we've played in a long time, and it's coming at the right time."

The Bucks host Seattle Wednesday, then Baltimore Friday.

Renault meets the growing demand for front-wheel drive cars.

In 1968 we introduced the front-wheel drive Renault 16. Last year we introduced the Renault 12. And for 1972 we are introducing two new f.w.d. models: the Renault 15 and the Renault 17 (these new sport models round out our line of f.w.d. cars).

Obviously, we believe that f.w.d. is the most sensible way to build a car. The four million people who bought f.w.d. cars last year agree with us. It won't be long until Americans in even greater numbers discover the advantages of owning a car with the drive wheels up front. And there is a good chance they'll turn to the company that makes more f.w.d. cars than anyone else in the world —Renault.

Tarkenton has Viking offense in top form

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Fran Tarkenton wants to make two points about the Minnesota Vikings' offense.

One, he says, Minnesota's offensive line is the best he's played behind.

Two, the Viking offense is at the top of its game.

The Vikings, also showing their old brand of defense, dumped the New Orleans Saints 37-6 Sunday in the National Football League to set up a crucial match next week against the Detroit Lions.

"Our offensive line is as good as any in football," said Tarkenton after he had completed 19 of 26 passes for 178 yards and short-yardage touchdowns to John Beasley and Bill Brown. "I can't understand why the offensive line gets rapped like it does. They are the finest pass blockers I've ever had."

The Vikings, now 4-4, trail Detroit and Green Bay, each 5-3, in the National Conference's Central Division.

"We are playing good offensive football," Tarkenton said. "This is the time of year when you should be playing good."

The Vikings took the opening kickoff and marched 78 yards for a 7-0 lead. Oscar Reed, who gained 82 of his 93 yards rushing in the first half, got 39 of the yards on the drive and ended it from one yard out.

New Orleans drove into field goal range after Tom Roussel intercepted a pass, but Charlie Durkee missed from 28 yards.

"I felt we were able to move the ball at times but we hurt ourselves with mistakes," said J.D. Roberts, New Orleans coach. "What really hurt was the missed field goal. It could have been 7-3 and a different game."

Instead, the Vikings drove into a 20-0 halftime lead on two field goals by Fred Cox and Tarkenton's scrambling touchdown pass to Beasley. Jeff Wright intercepted two passes to start drives to a field goal and a touchdown, and Wally Hilgenberg set up the other first half field goal with a fumble recovery.

Cox added a 45-yard field goal, Brown caught the threeyard scoring pass from Tarkenton and John Gilliam took a two-yard touchdown pass from Bob Lee after they had combined for a 63-yard gain to account for Minnesota's second half scoring.

Durkee kicked field goals of 14 and 36 yards for the only New Orleans points.

West, Wilt spark Lakers

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Los Angeles Lakers trimmed Seattle, 124-115, Sunday night. In other National Basketball Association games, Phoenix nipped Cleveland, 107-106, and Milwaukee whipped Philadelphia, 131-113.

Only two games were played in the American Basketball Association as the San Diego Conquistadors ran away from the Virginia Squires 132-121 and the Denver Rockets routed the New York Nets 137-107.

Jerry West and Wilt Chamberlain combined for 59 points to lead Los Angeles over Seattle. West hit on 14 of 23 shots and finished with a gamehigh 35 poins while Chamberlain raced up 16 of his 24 points in the second half, when the Lakers pulled away.

Los Angeles led by only 78-77 with 4:46 to play when West and Chamberlain took over. Chamberlain stuffed three shots to run the Laker lead to 97-85 and they never lost it.

Neal Walk hit two free throws with only two seconds left to help Phoenix nip Cleveland. The lead changed hands six times in the final minutes of the fourth quarter before Walk cashed in the game-winning shots.

Bristol joins Expos

MONTREAL (AP) — Dave Bristol, who was fired at midseason as manager of the Milwaukee Brewers this year, was named Friday as third base coach of the Montreal Expos.

General Manager Jim Fanning said Bristol, who also formerly managed the Cincinnati Reds, would replace Jimmy Bragan on a coaching staff which also includes Larry Doby, Cal McLish and Jerry Zimmerman under Manager Gene Mauch.

praying that I wouldn't drop that one. I didn't catch that particular pass all week in practice."

Nunley, who was vociferously protesting to the officials before the play was completed, later explained, "I don't know if he did it on purpose but the tight end came down on me. I had fullback coverage and he got in my way. They didn't see it, so it's seven.

"He doesn't have to hit me," he pointed out. "It was a pick. All he has to do is bump you. We hit each other, I know that."

Brockington credits the Vikings with an assist on his second touchdown excursion, a 30-yard reverse draw on which he broke two tackles en route to the end zone.

"We stole that play from Minnesota," he chuckled, "but there's nothing wrong with that. I start going one way on it, and then come back. That leaves the defense going the other way, and they're shot down.

"It was cool," Brockington effused. "It was cool." The sterling sophomore, who now has amassed 661 yards in eight games, said his third TD effort was somewhat less involved.

An off-tackle play

"That was just an off-tackle play," he said of the 14-yard sortie which vaulted the Packers into a 21-7 lead at the start of the third quarter. "I have the option of going in or out and I went inside. MacArthur Lane did his job blocking and the rest was easy. They went outside and I just turned inside."

Although it was his first 100-yard afternoon of the season, it was not sufficient to submerge the resilient 49ers, who fell even farther behind when Chester Marcol kicked a 35-yard field goal following Bob Brown's recovery of a Vic Washington fumble at the San Francisco 25, a boon triggered by a jolting Alden Roche tackle.

Bruce Gossett, normally considered to be a more modest range specialist, shortly surprised by retaliating with a 50-yard field goal and quarterback Steve Spurrier lifted the Golddigers to within seven points by way of a 62-yard collaboration with the lethal Gene Washington on the first play of the fourth quarter.

The first touchdown by air against the Packers this season, it evoked a wryly fatalistic reaction from victim Willie Buchanon, the Packers' gifted rookie cornerback.

"It was bound to happen," he said. "Al Matthews talking about our perfect record on television last week, so I knew something was bound to happen. And they finally got a touchdown.

"We were in a defense that I'm in man-to-man coverage and I'm supposed to cut off the inside, and I got caught. It was a perfect pass. Washington caught it in stride and that was all there was to it."

This sort of thing called for remedial action and it was shortly forthcoming, Marcol connecting from 40 yards out after a 23-yard pass to Dale and a 14 yard burst by Brockington had swept the Packers into possession.

Like the offense, the Packer defense kept its cool throughout, but it wasn't easy.

"A lot of times, it looked like Spurrier was trying to get rid of the ball," strong safety Al Matthews said. "He was just floating it up there and somebody was coming up with it. If he'd been throwing on rhythm, I think we would have intercepted a few. Actually, I thought we had good coverage.

On the field, it was Ellis who provided some highly practical assistance, leaping in front of Gene Washington to flag down a Spurrier pass and sprinting 28 yards into the end zone with only 23 seconds remaining.

Giants manhandle Denver

NEW YORK (AP)—Charley Johnson hates Yankee Stadium.

"I haven't had a good game here since 1963," said Denver's veteran quarterback. "I passed pitifully."

The New York Giants intercepted Johnson three times and executed five sacks of Bronco quarterbacks Sunday in a 29-17 National Football League victory.

"Even when I played with St. Louis, my trips to New York were not often happy experiences," added Johnson, who is in his first year with Denver. "I don't believe in jinxes...I don't think."

New York assembled marches of 92, 80 and 65 yards for three of its touchdowns and 240-pound linebacker Jim Files intercepeted a Johnson screen pass and chugged 37 yards to score.

The Giants, thanks to Files' steal, scored two touchdowns in the final 35 seconds of the first half and ballooned their lead to 19-0.

Denver Coach John Ralston, 2-6 in his rookie season after being hired from Stanford University, benched Johnson awhile for Steve Ramsey "to get something going."

The Broncos got a touchdown on a halfback pass from Bob Anderson to tight end Riley Odoms on a fake reverse. Jim Turner booted a 40-yard field goal. Suddenly, it was 19-10.

New York got six on Norm Snead's 11-yard flip to Ron Johnson and Denver was already about finished when Floyd Little wriggled free on a 55-yard scoring run.

Snead hit 12 of 24, a fair day for most quarterbacks, but it was the 13-year veteran's weakest day percentagewise this season. He was the NFL leader before Sunday with 66 per cent.

Browns blank stubborn Oilers

CLEVELAND (AP) — Leroy Kelly thoughtfully ran a comb through his hair.

"The defense did a heckuva job. They kept stopping them and getting the ball back for us," said the Cleveland running back, a big factor himself in the Browns' 20-0 victory Sunday over the Houston Oilers.

Kelly, checked by a tenacious Oilers' defense through three periods, bolted 1 and 14 yards in the final quarter, wrapping up the Browns' sixth straight National Football League verdict over Houston.

Kelly thought he had an explanation for the Browns' tough time against the stubborn Oilers, who trailed just 3-0 at halftime before suffering their seventh defeat in eight games.

"We might have been a little too tight," he said. "We were out-thinking ourselves in the first half. We settled down and went back to basic football in the second half."

Don Cockroft's field goals of 19 and 32 yards and amiserly defense played vital roles in the victory that kept the Browns one game behind Pittsburgh in the AFC's Central Division.

Cleveland, 5-3, now is deadlocked with Cincinnati for second place. The Bengals took a 40-17 lacing at Pittsburgh Sunday.

Bill Peterson, in fact, thought it was the Browns' brilliant goal line stand late in the first period that decided his Oilers' fate.

"We just don't have enough character to score from the two-inch line," said the Houston mentor after Walt Johnson slammed Fred Willis back short of the Browns' goal.

Cleveland Coach Nick Skorich agreed with Peterson. "The goal line stand was a big part of the game."

Peterson tried both Dan Pastorini and Kent Nix at quarterback, but neither could foil the Browns' first shutout since Houston was a 31-0 victim in the 1971 opener.

Cleveland managed only 298 total yards to Houston's 212. Skorich credited that to the stubborn Oiler defense.

Stram lauds KC after 27-14 win

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "This was undoubtedly our best game.'

Coach Hank Stram said it — and the statistics bore him out — after the Kansas City Chiefs paraded past Oakland by one-half game for the lead in the American Football Conference West with a 27-14 victory over the Raiders Sunday.

For the first time this season, the Chiefs sparkled on the ground, grinding out 190 yards, including 115 by Ed Podolak. The held Oakland to 73 yards rushing.

Len Dawson, like Podolak turning in his best game, tossed three touchdown passes, 29 yards to Wendell Hayes, 42 to Robert West and 27 to Podolak.

"Our bench was on fire," said Stram. "We played like our personality. We ran the sweeps off the tight I, pulling both the guards and a tackle sometimes.

"I felt we won the game up front. Our offensive line was superb, both in blocking and in protection."

Dawson, who was not dropped behind the line once for the first time in a long while, threaded his passes flawlessly through the Oaklnad defensive patterns.

"The big thing was that we established a running game," Dawson said. "It's the first time this year we've been able to do that. Our offensive line and running backs did a great job. They picked up first downs running so we didn't have so many third-down obvious passing situations.

"It's the best we've moved on the ground against Oakland in three years."

John Madden, the disappointed Oakland coach whose players had boasted publicly all week they were going to give the Chiefs a lesson to remember, summed up the defeat in a few words:

"It all boiled down to this: When we had to move the ball, we didn't. And when we had to stop them, we didn't. Those three turnovers were costly."

Oakland had its best concentration of offense in the third quarter when Ken Stabler replaced injured Daryle Lamonica at quarterback during an 80-yard drive.

With the Chiefs ahead 20-0, Stabler took to the air and guided the Raiders to their first touchdown, scored by Hubbard from four yards out.

Steelers take lead in division with victory

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Life seems to have begun at 40 for the Pittsburgh Steelers, who after 39 dismal seasons have taken another step toward their first division title ever.

"That's what happens when you lose all those years. You get to draft people who can turn it around," Cincinnati Bengal Coach Paul Brown said Sunday after his team was trounced 40-17 by Pittsburgh.

He referred to first-round draft prizes like Terry Bradshaw, Frank Lewis and Franco Harris whose offensive weaponry helped Pittsburgh snap a tie with the Bengals for the lead in the American Conference's Central Division.

"We haven't reached that stage yet where we've drafted the skilled positions,' Brown noted.

Nonetheless, his team went into the game with the same 5-2 record as Pittsburgh and had boasted the stingiest defense in all of pro football.

"They had such a head of steam up. Emotionally they were in a frenzy," Brown observed in a casual, pleasant manner. Then he facetiously added, "By the way, where did they have the bonfire last night?"

That wasn't the only tongueincheek remark by Brown, a wily veteran of 38 years of coaching who already has a spot in the Hall of Fame.

"They're in first place and they'll probably breeze to it," he said with a wink and the sly grin of a man who knows one game does not make or break a season.

Regardless, it was a big day for Pittsburgh, which ran up a 20-0 halftime lead en route to its highest point total in four seasons.

Bradshaw led the way with three touchdown passes, including scoring tosses of 28 and 34 yeards to Lewis.

Meanwhile, rookie Harris rushed for 101 yards and a touchdown to lead a Steeler ground game that produced 230 yards against what had been pro football's toughest team against the run.

Bobcats earn weekend split

CHICAGO (AP) — A hat trick by Ed Chestolowski in the third period Sunday gave the Green Bay Bobcats a 6-to-5 victory over the Chicago Warriors and boosted their United State Hockey League record to 3-2.

The defending champion Bobcats lost to the undefeated Thunder Bay Twins 7-3 Saturday night as Bryan Deperio tallied three goals for the league leaders.

Packer telecast curtailed by strike

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Columbia Broadcasting System blamed strikers for curtailing a televised broadcast of a National Football League contest Sunday between the Green Bay Packers and San Francisco 49ers.

A CBS engineer at Milwaukee County Stadium, Dick Sedi, said his crew had only 50 per cent of its customary equipment and personnel because of a technicians' walkout.

The limited crew was unable to handle instant replays or other auxiliary activities, he said. The game was blacked out for about eight miniutes in the third quarter.

Other problems, Sedi said, included cutting of nine cables.

Milwaukee police said no arrests were made. Cables also were reported cut in New York, forcing cancellation of an NFL broadcast.

Eagles duel St. Louis to 6-6 tie

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The futility that surrounds the St. Louis Cardinals and the Philadelphia Eagles must be catching. Jim Bakken and Tom Dempsey, two of the National Football League's best field goal kickers, got caught up in it Sunday.

The Cardinals and Eagles were tied 6-6 in the fourth period of their National Football League meeting with 4:08 remaining in the dull game. The Eagles drove into St. Louis territory and stalled. Dempsey tried a 45-yard field goal and missed.

St. Louis took the ball at its 20 and in 11 plays, plus a 15yard penalty, advanced to the Philadelphia 20. Now it was Bakken's chance to win it all with 17 seconds left. It looked like a sure pop for the veteran kicker from the 27, but it wasn't. He missed it, and the game wound up in a tie.

Bakken and Dempsey refused to alibi in the quiet dressing rooms. They both said simply, "I missed."

"The snap was good, the hold good, the concentration and desire were there, but the ball wasn't," Bakken said.

Dempsey commented, "I blew it," and then added somewhat cryptically, "that's why some kickers get paid more than others."

Earlier in the game, Dempsey gave the Eagles a 3-0 first period lead with a field goal from the 11. Bakken came on twice in the second quarter and booted three pointers from the nine and the 32. Dempsey missed a shot from the 33 and it was 6-3 at halftime. After a scoreless third period, Dempsey connected from the 30 to make it 6-6.

Bakken has kicked 10 of 16 and Dempsey nine of 18 this season.

The Eagles also lost an opportunity to score a touchdown in the third quarter. Quarterback Pete Liske directed a drive from the Philadelphia 29 to a first down at the St. Louis three. Larry Crowe picked up two and then Liske tried to sneak into the end zone. He fumbled and Larry Stallings recovered on the one for St. Louis.

Liske said the quarterback sneak was called from the sidelines by the coaches.

Thomas watches Chargers lose

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Duane Thomas walked off the field, expressionless, silent, apparently ignoring the scattered jeers of the fans who sat above the gateway to the San Diego clubhouse. A penalty had prolonged the game for one more play, but Thomas had spent all of Sunday afternoon, his first as an official member of the Chargers, on the bench.

So Thomas didn't stick around to see a final, meaningless San Diego touchdown that left the Chargers 34-28 losers to his former team, the Dallas Cowboys.

The Chargers were out of the game almost by the time the first quarter was half over.

The crowd watched Thomas' familiar No. 33 walk onto the field; they watched as he stood apart from teammates, hands on knees, during pregame drills; laughed when he deliberately dropped a practice pass; cheered when he took a couple of wind sprints.

In the third quarter, with the Cowboys leading 31-0, the chant began, "We want Thomas."

Through it all, he sat motionless, one arm draped over the team bench, seated even when his teammates crowded to the sidelines when the Chargers narrowed the gap to 31-21.

Coach Harland Svare, left Thomas on the bench and the Chargers scored four touchdowns to make the score respectable.

"I thought about using him on kickoff returns and changed my mind," said Svare, who activated Thomas before the game after the running back had made a surprise appearance at Friday's practice session.

Svare was smiling. He had just been given a new five-year contract to coach the Chargers, despite the near whitewash.

As for Thomas' contract, a Charger spokesman indicated the team had agreed to raise Thomas' salary from the $22,000 he was to have received this year in Dallas before his trade here.

Van Brocklin lauds Merlin Olsen as LA gets revenge over Atlanta

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Norm Van Brocklin, an explosive quarterback for the Los Angeles Rams who now is the explosive coach of the Atlanta Falcons, was more reflective than explosive when he said, "Merlin Olsen was the best man on the field."

Van Brocklin's Falcons had just been beaten by the Rams 20-7 in their tussle for top spot in the National Football Conference West and most of the plaudits were going to the offensive corps.

When told of the compliment paid him by Van Brocklin, the 270-pound veteran defensive tackle responded, "That certainly was nice of him, but I thought I did some things very well and did some I didn't like."

While Willie Ellison and rookie Jim Bertelsen were each scoring a touchdown and powering the offense directed by sore-armed Roman Gabriel, it was Olsen who proved the best among the big guys of a solid defense.

Olsen was asked what had motivated the big turnaround since the Rams had lost to the Falcons in Georgia 31-3.

"We had more respect this time around for Atlanta...You always do whenever you lose badly to a team the time before. And it was harder for Atlanta to get up for a team they beat so convincingly last time."

There was another behind the scenes factor. The Rams had lost to Oakland last week 45-17. Four Los Angeles passes were intercepted early.

That was, said Gabriel, "the worst game I had ever played. From Sunday night until I reported to practice on Tuesday was a whole week of thinking for me. I had to reason what I did wrong. I came to the conclusion I had to use my head...which I hadn't done at Oakland."

Gabriel, who calls the signals himself, came up with a sharp attack featuring the running attack with the pass interspersed only when needed.

Ellison gained 114 yards in 27 carries and the first touchdown on a one-yard smash. Bertelsen, the rookie from Texas, gained 71 on 11 carries and ran seven yards for the second touchdown.

David Ray contributed field goals of 36 and 15 yards—the second set up by a 39-yard return of a punt by Bertelsen.

MILWAUKEE — Quick Packer-Forty Niner quotes:

Ray Nitschke (on his first starting assignment of the season): "It felt like old times. I've had a little doubt in my mind if I could play or not any more. I wish I could have played a little more. I felt a little rusty — my timing was off.

"But I'm just so happy we won. This team showed a lot of character today. I'm just happy and proud to be part of it."

Dan Devine (on the switch which found Nitschke starting, Jim Carter at strong side linebacker): "We just thought we would try to get in a lineup that would be most effective against what we expected them to start with. The change which put Dave Robinson in and moved Carter back to the middle was coaching strategy. . .We need everybody on this football team."

Dick Nolan, 49er coach: "We have the ball up too many times and didn't stop them when we had the chances. We just weren't hitting in the first half. We started hitting in the second half, but you can't wait like that."

Al Matthews: "That Jimmy Johnson is the most consistent cornerback in the league. I love watching him. When the ball's in the air, he's around the ball. And when you run a sweep, he's right up there."

Dave Hanner: "I'm not sure why the Forty Niners gave up running the ball as early as they did. They've got a fine running game. We probably were more concerned about their running than their passing, to start out with, even though they've got a great passing attack. If they get their running started, then you know it's going to make their passing tougher."

Dan Devine again: "Rollie Dotsch came up during the week with that play John Brockington scored his first touchdown on. This whole team — everybody on this team and coaching staff — contributes a great deal."

John Brockington: "That catch Leland Glass made for the first down in the last couple of minutes was a great catch. That saved the game."

Carroll Dale: "Scott Hunter had to wait a little on that pass down the middle to me — the short safety made him wait by the way he was playing it. But Scott threw it where he had to. You figure you're going to get hit on one like that, so you might as well go for the ball."

Dan Devine (on the same play): "I don't think Scott ever has thrown one better than he did then. . .But I don't want to point out any individuals. It was a 40-man thing — and the coaches."

Dick Nolan again: "The score dictated our going to the pass as much as we did in the second half. But I thought we had to run more than we did to set it up."

Competes with Simpson

Morris helps Dolphs stay unbeaten

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — When Mercury Morris gets into the game he's playing for the team, he says. When he's playing against the Buffalo Bills, he says, he's going against O.J Simpson.

"It's my own personal vendetta," the 5-foot-10, 190-pound running back for the Miami Dolphins said Sunday soon after he scored two touchdowns in the Dolphins' 30-16 conquest of the Bills.

The victory, the eighth in a row, kept the Dolphins the only undefeated team in the National Football League.

"Back when I was in college," Morris said in the dressing room, "O.J. beat me out in my junior and senior years for the collegiate rushing title." Morris went to West Texas State, Simpson was All-American and Heisman Trophy winner at Southern California.

"Simpson always seems to beat me out," said Morris of the Bills' top running back. "When we play Buffalo, we always play the team. But for my own personal vendetta, I'm going against O.J."

Morris carried the ball 11 times for 106 yards, including 33 the first time he took a handoff from quarterback Earl Morrall. That was the key play in a drive climaxed by Morris' 22-yard touchdown run. He also scored late in the game on a five-yard trek.

The 106-yard output was the second 100-plus effort by Morris, in his fourth year as a pro. The other came against Buffalo last year.

Of his "personal vendetta" with Simpson, Morris said, "He knows it and I'm sure he goes in with the same feeling."

"We're friends," was Simpson's reaction. "I'd like to see Merc do well, but with running backs you want to look better than the other guy no matter who he is.

"Right now I'm more interested in beating out Larry (Csonka) for the rushing title."

Going into the game, Simpson was the American Conference rushing leader with 678 yards, 43 more than Csonka.

Simpson picked up only 45 against the Dolphins while Csonka bulled for 72.

The Bills, now 2-6 for the season, "made too many costly errors," said coach Lou Saban.

"We were always chasing on the scoreboard and when you're chasing you're always in trouble," he added.

The Bills led only once in the game, 6-3. Buffalo scored on a 14-yard pass from Dennis Shaw to rookie Randy Jackson after Garo Yerpremian booted the first of his three field goals from 33 yards.

Yepremian added two more three-pointers—17 and 16 yards.

Miami Coach Don Shula was elated, but admitted unhappiness that the Dolphins did not put 21 points on the board instead of the nine collected via the field goals.

Schaefer to chair area program for Christians, Jews

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer of Appleton has been appointed chairman of District 3 of the state's 1972-3 Brotherhood Program for the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

The appointment was announced recently by state chairman Rev. John Raynor, S.J., president of Marquette University in Milwaukee. Schaefer's district includes the Fox Cities area in addition to Green Lake, Marquette, Winnebago, Waupaca and Waushara counties.

Schaefer, who served as chairman for the Fox Cities area last year, plans to call upon county chairmen to encourage emphasis on community relations with migrant workers, policemen and ex-parolees.

The NCCJ seeks to develop human relations programs in the schools, churches and civic organizations throughout the state. The year-round educational program is sustained by voluntary contributions collected by local county campaigns.

Oshkosh police searching for female robber

OSHKOSH — A woman in her mid-20s is being sought here for the Sunday night armed robbery of one Main Street restaurant and the attempted armed robbery of another.

According to city police, the woman entered the Kentucky Fried Chicken Restaurant, 900 N. Main St., at 8:13 p.m. and ordered a dinner. When assistant manager Allen Buenning went to prepare it, the woman pulled out a long-barreled automatic pistol and ordered a waitress to put all the money from the cash register into a bag. She then ordered Buenning and another employe to the front of the restaurant and told them to place their hands behind their heads. After $483 was placed in a bag by Buenning, the woman left and walked north on Main Street.

At 8:56 p.m., a woman of the same description pulled a gun on a waitress at the service window of the A & W Hutch's Drive-In, 1741 N. Main St., and ordered her to place the money from a cash register into a bag.

When the waitress told the woman that all the money was in a different register, she was told to get it and not say anything. The waitress, however, managed to tell the manager what was happening. He then locked the doors and he and the waitress and a customer got down on the floor. The woman left empty handed.

She was described as white, about 25 years old, five feet, five inches tall and about 130 pounds with a low voice and shoulder-length auburn hair. She was wearing a brown corduroy coat and blue jeans.

Bureau of Weights helps protect consumer

BY CAMILLE HANEY
Consumer affairs coordinator
State Justice Department

Did you ever feel that your butcher had his thumb on the scale when he weighed your meat? Or maybe it was more than imagination that made you think the gas station attendant didn't quite start the pump going at zero dollars and zero cents?

The Bureau of Weights and Measures of the State Department of Agriculture is the agency to consult. It tests the accuracy of devices that measure items as light as a feather or as heavy as an elephant — and anything in between.

Checking livestock weights, gas pumps, vehicle meters, farm milk tanks, and prepackaged commodities are emphasized. As it is impossible and impractical to check every weighing and measuring device, much less the thousands of prepackaged items, the Bureau uses a selective testing program.

The Bureau states. "The selective testing program obtains accuracy in prepackaged items and in weighing and measuring devices in the most effective and efficient manner possible to maximize return per tax dollar invested."

Of course an alert consumer is the weights and measures official's best ally. The Bureau noted that about 50 per cent of your money is spent on goods or services involving weights and measures. A smart shopper would be wise to study these hints from the Bureau of Weights and Measures to get the most for the money.

Buy by weight if you have a choice and personally observe the weighing. All sales should be by net weight, so make sure you're not paying for the paper your steak is wrapped in or the container holding your potato salad.

Anything that is priced prior to sale must have the quantity indicated. Use it to your advantage to determine the cost per unit. Labels like large, jumbo and family size don't tell you much about quantity, so check the quantity statement.

Watch the gas pump. State law requires the indicators of price and gallonage on gas pumps to be returned to zero before the attendant starts filling your tank.

Make an effort to understand how weights and measures are involved with your daily shopping purchases at the supermarket, gas station, drug store or wherever. Besides saving money, you will have a better idea of exactly what you are buying.

If you have any questions on the correctness of the measurements of your purchases, contact the Bureau of Weights and Measures, Department of Agriculture, Room 209 B, Hill Farms State Office Building, Madison, Wisconsin 53702, or call their Consumers Action Line, 608-266-2228.

Mother tells police; youth gets probation for possessing drug

A 16-year-old Appleton boy whose mother notified police after she caught him with marijuana was placed on nine months' supervision Friday and will be assigned a volunteer probation worker.

The boy pleaded guilty of marijuana possession when he appeared before Outagamie County Juvenile Court Judge R. Thomas Cane, who withheld a delinquency finding. Cane said the volunteer probably would be a Lawrence University student.

The boy's mother, in court with him, told police she came home Sept. 29 to find him with marijuana in a flour sifter in the kitchen. He told her it was uncut parsley for a school experiment, but she took some of the material to the police station where tests revealed it was marijuana. The youth said he found uncut marijuana in the woods near Appleton High School-East.

Cane, after ordering supervision to the court, set a curfew for the boy and told him he must remain in school. The youth had one prior Juvenile Court appearance, for shoplifting.

Low level of support by unskilled workers is hurting McGovern

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Pollster George Gallup says Sen. George McGovern appears to have the smallest percentage of blue collar support of any Democratic presidential candidate since scientific polling was introduced in 1936.

Instead of President Nixon's current 59 to 36 per cent national lead over McGovern, Gallup said Thursday, the margin would be reduced to about eight points if manual workers had stuck to their traditional voting patterns.

He said McGovern's six point gain since the start of the campaign had been due to winning back blue collar workers, adding, "the final days of the campaign could see a continued return to the fold of these traditionally Democratic voters."

In the latest survey, Nixon leads McGovern 49 to 44 among blue collar workers. Within this category, "skilled" workers favored Nixon 60 to 34 while "unskilled" workers favored McGovern 51 to 41.

Rip Jet defense

Skins win behind Kilmer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Needless to say," Washington Coach George Allen was saying needlessly after the Redskins' 35-17 victory over New York, "it was a very big win for us.

"We were particularly worried because the Jets are No. 1 in offense," he said. The Jets, however, are also 11th in the American Conference in total defense and last in pass defense—so Allen need not have worried that much.

Billy Kilmer took advantage of that weakness in Sunday's National Football League game before a record Shea Stadium crowd of 63,962 fans.

Throwing both short and long with relative ease, the Redskins' quarterback, once again No 1 because of a hobbled Sonny Jurgensen, connected on touchdown passes covering 45, 70 and 89 yards to spark Washington to its seventh victory in eight games, keeping the 'Skins atop the National Conference East, a game ahead of Dallas.

Just as important as Kilmer's cool tosses, though, was a defense that had Joe Namath scurrying for cover all day, sacking him three times, intercepting three of his passes and limiting him to net aerial yardage of just 116 yards.

"The problem," Namath admitted, "was the guys on the other side of the line. They've got a great reputation—and they deserve it."

Everyone in the park—especially the Jets—expected running back Larry Brown, the runaway league leader in ground gaining, to carry the major burden, and the Redskins exploited this expectation.

"The Jets were keying on me and this opened up a lot for our passing game," said Brown, who wound up with just 48 yards rushing to move within 111 of the 1,000-yard mark for the year. "When they key on you, it's just a sign or respect. The last 200 yards before you reach 1,000 are the hardest."

Kilmer, who had plenty of time to throw and completed seven of his 16 passes for 222 yards, got the 'Skins on the scoreboard in the opening minutes with his 45-yard bomb to Roy Jefferson.

After the Jets tied it on John Riggins' one-yard scoring run and took a brief 10-7 lead with Bobby Howfield's field goal, Kilmer, on a third-and-one situation on his own 30, read a New York blitz and shattered it with a 20-yard toss to a wide-open Charley Taylor, who gathered the pass in at midfield and raced the remaining 50 yards for a touchdown.

On the first play after the kickoff, Chris Hanburger intercepted a Namath pass and ran it 41 yards for a score that made it 21-10. Then Kilmer, from his own 11, flipped a flare pass to Brown, who blazed 89 yards down the left sideline for another touchdown.

A fumbled punt reception by Speedy Thomas set up Namath's 15-yard scoring pass to Don Maynard but the Redskins got that back and sealed the victory as Namath fumbled, Verlon Biggs recovered and rumbled 16 yards for the final touchdown.

"I still think we can win it all," said Coach Weeb Ewbank, whose Jets, 5-3, fell three games back of undefeated Miami in the AFC East. "It's the teams that win most in December that are contenders."

Impromptu practice spurs Bruin win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Hockey League season already is one month old, but a couple of teams still are working the summer kinks out of their backs.

Take the Boston Bruins, for example. The 1971 Stanley Cup champs had won only five of 12 games before boarding a plane to Vancouver for a Sunday afternoon match against the Canucks.

Coach Tom Johnson, understandably, was upset, so he used that plane ride to think of a way to shake his team up. Finally, an idea struck. "We went right from the plane to the rink," said Johnson, "and we worked out. Hard. That's what we needed."

The impromptu practice did the trick, all right, as the Bruins got early goals from Johnny Bucyk, Ken Hodge, and Carol Vadnais and went on to a 4-2 triumph over the Canucks.

Maybe Coach Boom Boom Geoffrion should take a page from Johnson's book. Geoffrion's Atlanta Flames managed a 2-2 tie with the Toronto Maple Leafs Sunday night, but the Boomer commented after the game, "My guys weren't right tonight."

Billy Reay's Chicago Black Hawks weren't "right" either. They had to come from behind three times to gain a 3-3 tie with the California Golden Seals, the doormat of the NHL West.

"We always seem to be trying to fight from behind," moaned Reay after watching his charges lose a chance to gain two points on first-place Los Angeles, which was idle, and second-place Philadelphia, which lost to the New York Rangers 3-2.

In other games Sunday night, St. Louis and Buffalo battled to a 1-1 tie thanks to spectacular goaltending by the Blues' Jacques Caron and the Sabres' Dave Dryden and Pittsburgh tied Detroit 1-1.

TD pass at final horn lifts LSU

BY HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Quick as the wink he had just given Coach Charlie McClendon, Louisiana State's Bert Jones went from goat to hero.

Sixth-ranked LSU trailed Mississippi 16-10 Saturday night when Ole Miss was called for pass interference at its own 10yard line with four seconds left to play.

Jones quickly threw an incomplete pass to stop the clock since the Tigers had used up all their timeouts. Now, only one second remained but the Tigers got a big break when Mississippi unaccountably called time out.

Given a reprieve, Jones trotted to the sidelines, where McClendon intoned these pressure-packed words. "Son," he said, "this is it." Jones merely winked, went back to work and fired a pass to Brad Davis in the end zone as the final horn sounded.

Still, the suspense wasn't over.

"I lost the ball in the lights," said Davis.

"I caught the ball with one hand, then the other and then my head, juggling it around a lot before I fell. I didn't know I had it made until I heard the stands explode." Rusty Jackson then kicked the extra point that gave LSU a 17-16 triumph and set up next weekend's Southeastern Conference showdown against equally unbeaten Alabama.

Jones marched the Tigers 80 yards in 13 plays in the final three minutes to remove the goat horns. Underdog Mississippi took a 3-0 lead in the first period following a Jones fumble and turned an interception into another field goal in the final quarter for a 16-10 spread.

Broken wrist won't stop Braves' Smith

BUFFALO (AP) — The Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association revealed Sunday that their 7-foot center has a broken bone in his right wrist.

A club spokesman said Elmore Smith apparently injured the wrist in Friday's game in Cleveland Smith played in the Braves' game against the Chicago Bulls Saturday night and made two crucial plays late in the game to lead his club to a 101-99 victory

The spokesman said Smith will probably be able to continue playing with a cast on his wrist He said more X-rays will be taken Friday to determine if the break is anew one or if it is an aggravation of an old break.

Poison used as threat

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Authorities refuse to confirm or deny a report by the Sacramento Union that someone has threatened to kill innocent people in Sacramento County if President Nixon is re-elected Tuesday.

The Union quoted on Sunday from a note which described Nixon as "the killer" responsible for "the thousands of innocent people killed in Vietnam."

The Union said the note was enclosed in nine packets of food containing deadly doses of cyanide which were mailed to area residents. The story said the writer claimed to have mailed 75 such packets and threatened to place 194 more on the shelves of area food markets if Nixon wins.

at random from the telephone directory, Miller said.

William Miller, a spokesman for the Sacramento County Sheriff's Department, refused to confirm or deny the story but acknowledged that the poisoning of the food packets "is related to the Vietnam situation and the killing in Vietnam."

Miller said five of the packets were reported to authorities by residents on Friday, three more on Saturday and a ninth on Sunday.

Officers acknowledged that the packets had notes enclosed but they refused to divulge their contents. News media were asked not to release the contents of the notes if they obtained copies.

Meanwhile, authorities urged local residents to shop carefully. Searches were made of 13 area supermarkets but turned up nothing.

Miller said the poisoned food was all of the type packed in foil envelopes — such as lemonade powder, soup, salad dressing, dip and seasoning mixes. They had been carefully slit with a razor blade, then resealed with transparent tape.

Miller said the packets were mailed in brown manila envelopes which carried phony return addresses.

Each was accompanied by a hand-printed note saying the food was poisoned and that 75 such packets had been mailed to persons selected

Parochial aid to get review

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to review a New York law that provided $28 million a year in state funds for parochial schools until it was declared unconstitutional.

The justices acted on appeals from the ruling by a three-judge panel in New York City last April. The case will be heard early next year and a final decision announced by the end of June 1973.

Appeals had been filed by Arthur Levitt, the state comptroller; Ewald B. Nyquist, the commissioner of education; Earl Brydges, majority leader of the state senate; and three Roman Catholic and two Jewish parochial schools.

The 1970 Mandated Service Act allocated direct payments to parochial and other private schools to reimburse them for administering examinations, maintaining attendance records and making other reports required of the schools by the state.

In a 2-1 decision, the district court in New York held the assistance violated the First Amendment's separation of church and state.

In other actions today, the court:

—Struck down an 1882 law banning unauthorized demonstrations on the U.S. Capitol grounds.

—Declined to hear the plea of a St. Petersburg, Fla., man that a city law prohibiting verbal abuse of policemen is unconstitutional.

The appeal by Levitt and Nyquist emphasized that the nonpublic schools are required to keep records and administer tests in order to comply with New York State's compulsory attendance laws.

Therefore, the state officials said, the schools should be reimbursed for their expenses. They added that "the precise question" has never been ruled upon by the high court.

Brydges, who is also the president pro tem of the state senate, said the reimbursement is limited strictly to costs of "secular, neutral and nonideological" services required by the state.

The legislator said the court recognized this type of payment as being constitutional in its decisions in June 1971 while disapproving reimbursement to parochial schools in Pennsylvania and Rhode Island for instruction in nonreligious subjects.

The third appeal came from the Cathedral Academy in Albany, St. Ambrose School in Rochester, Bishop Loughlin Memorial High School in Brooklyn, Bais Yaacov Academy for Girls in Queens and Yeshivah Rambam in Brooklyn.

They also stressed that private schools are required to comply with state attendance laws.

The reimbursements under the law were 15 cents a day of attendance for pupils in the first through sixth grades and 25 cents a day of attendance for pupils in the seventh through 12th grades Based on attendance of 180 days, nonpublic schools were reimbursed $27 a year for each elementary pupil a year and $45 for each high school pupil.

The state paid out $28 million last year and $14 million early this year. An addition $14 million scheduled for payment between April 15 and June 15 was enjoined by the district court. In July, Justice Harry A. Blackmun declined to permit the payments while the officials and the schools appealed to the Supreme Court.

Campaign draws to close

AP Political Writer

Democratic challenger George McGovern sweeps from New York to Los Angeles today to climax his uphill presidential drive while President Nixon speaks from his San Clemente, Calif., home in an election-eve windup that typifies the 1972 campaign.

Democratic vice-presidential nominee Sargent Shriver also scheduled a long day of campaigning, from Pittsburgh to Beaumont, Tex., and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew planned last-day appearances in Philadelphia and Richmond, Va.

Independent polls continued to forecast a Nixon-Agnew landslide in Tuesday's balloting that is expected to draw a record total of more than 80 million to the nation's voting booths. Democrats remain favored to retain House and Senate control, plus a majority of governorships.

In a day that took him from St. Louis to Moline, Ill., to New York City Sunday, McGovern continued to accuse President Nixon of deceiving the nation about Vietnam peace prospects and said Nixon has been ruling the country like "a Roman emperor" without regard for congressional powers.

In a nationwide television speech from New York Sunday night, he said peace is not at hand, as claimed by the Nixon administration—"it is not even in sight." He said the remaining issues in the agreement to be worked out with Hanoi are the "central issues of the war. And Mr. Nixon knows it."

McGovern said the administration's "deception" about prospects for peace "is the ultimate utilization of the technique that has become known as 'the big lie.'"

Nixon, meanwhile, spent much of the day relaxing at his oceanfront San Clemente home while declaring in a paid radio speech that the choice in Tuesday's election "is clear-cut and momentous."

He said the balloting could be "one of our finest hours" and listed 10 goals, ranging from "a secure and prosperous America" to "a great and good America," which he said could be achieved "no matter who wins in the next two days."

Indians ready to fight police

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indians occupying the Bureau of Indian Affairs, girding for what they predict will be a battle with police, said today they were declaring war on the United States and threatened to destroy the building they have held since Thursday.

The Indians emphasized their war declaration as the deadline passed for what they said was a Department of Interior order to evacuate or be thrown out.

"They can have the building after it is gutted. When we go, the building goes," said Russell Means, a leader of the Trail of Broken Treaties Caravan which took over the building. He said the approximately 400 Indians in the building spent Sunday night planning their defense against what they say will be a police attempt to storm their makeshift barricades.

U.S. District Court Judge John Pratt, who earlier had issued a temporary restraining order ordering the Indians to leave the building, said today he would decide this afternoon whether to hold the protesters in contempt of court.

If Pratt issues the comtempt citation, this would clear the way for police and U.S. marshals to move into the building and attempt to evict the protesters, one of the judge's assistants said.

About 35 Indians armed with clubs and make-shift tomahawks stood at the building's entrance near a barricade formed by several crossed teepee poles. Smaller, sharpened poles jutted out from the barricade.

"We have now declared war on the United States of America—seek your stations," Vernon Bellecourt said Sunday night. Bellecourt is the head of the American Indian Movement which is dominating the demanstration.

Means predicted that any fight between police and the Indians might resemble the Indian massacre at Broken Knee, popularized by the best-seller, "Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee."

The Indians took over the building last Thursday as they came to the capital to protest their treatment at the hands of government.

In contrast to last Friday night and early Saturday, however, when the Indians prepared to confront police with an emotional fervor that verged on jubilance, the mood early today was sober and brooding.

While there was unanimity in voting to stay and fight rather than accept the government's last offer of housing at a nearby auditorium—this time with portable showers being added to the bargain—the Indians were hushed and stoic while Bellencourt explained the situation.

They shouted "no" to the offer but there was no weaponwaving or chanting, only a rush to start putting in place the barricades removed early last Saturday.

Estimates of the number of Indians in the building ranged from 400 to 2,000.

"Both this administration and our caravan are backed up against the election (Tuesday)," said Dennis Banks, national field director of AIM. "Zero hour is too close to provide meaningful discussion. The government wants this building, they don't care about us."

Britain put under price, wage freeze

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath clamped a 90-day freeze today on wages and prices in his Conservative government's bid to curb Britain's runaway inflation.

He told a packed House of Commons the freeze will apply to wages, prices, rents and dividends subject to a "limited number of exceptions."

The Prime Minister said he will rush through Parliament a bill empowering the government to take action but the freeze will take effect immediately.

Waldheim calls for worldwide war on crime

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim says the world organization should take action to deal with what he called a world crime crisis of growing proportions.

In a weekend report to the United Nations, Waldheim said it might be appropriate for the organization to develop international policy for a fight against crime through meetings of ministers of justice, ministers of the interior or their equivalents.

"Despite material progress, human life has never had a greater sense of insecurity than it is experiencing today," Waldheim said.

He said many areas of the world are plagued by an "ever rising tide of known homicides, robberies, burglaries and sex offenses."

3 choppers shot down

SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces shot down three U.S. helicopters within 14 miles of Da Nang Sunday, killing two Americans and wounding three, the U.S. Command announced today.

An Army AH1 Cobra gunship was hit by small arms fire and crashed in flames 14 miles south of Da Nang, killing one crewman and wounding the second.

An OH6 light observation helicopter was shot down as it attempted to recover the casualties, and one of its crew was wounded. A second OH6 then went in and picked up the dead and wounded, and a relief pilot flew out the damaged OH6. The Cobra gunship was destroyed.

About eight hours later, another OH6 was shot down by small arms fire six miles to the north. The U.S Command said one crewmen was killed, the second was wounded and the helicopter was destroyed.

The losses raised to 8,488 the total number of U.S. aircraft reported lost to all causes in the war. This includes 4,851 helicopters.

U.S. B52 bombers swept to within 56 miles of the 20th parallel today in their deepest raids against North Vietnam since the resumption of fullscale bombing last April. The raids 34 miles north of Vinh were part of a concerted effort to blunt a Communist buildup of troops and supplies in all four countries of Indochina in anticipation of a cease-fire, U.S. military sources said.

Hijack attempt ends in capture in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — A masked, middle-aged man carrying a .38-caliber revolver, hijacked a Japanese domestic airliner with 127 other persons aboard today in a bid for a plane to Cuba and $2 million ransom, but police in hiding captured him on the ground eight hours later and no one was hurt.

Police said the man first identified himself as a Chinese-American from San Francisco but then told them he really was a Japanese, Tatsuji Nakaoka, who had been living in Los Angeles.

Police said his revolver had six bullets and he had 50 more rounds inside his suitcase. He also claimed to have planted seven 30-pound bombs in the baggage compartment. Two packages, each containing 33 pounds of gunpowder, were found.

Just before the hijacker was captured, the Japanese Air Defense Command got a hijack alarm signal from a cargo flight en route from Anchorage, Alaska, to Tokyo, but the pilot reported he pressed the alarm by mistake.

Authorities gave this account of the hijacking

The Japan Air Lines Boeing 727 took off from Tokyo for Fukuoka in western Japan about 7:30 a.m. The hijacker hid in the toilet at takeoff and remained there for 40 minutes until the plane was 28,000 feet over Nagoya At that point he burst into the cockpit, put a pistol to the pilot's head and ordered him to fly to Cuba, but the 727 had too short a range for the 13,000-mile flight and the pilot headed back toward Tokyo

One of the passengers, singer Skira Mita, told newsmen the crew behaved with great coolness, and the stewardesses let those who wished to walk about. She said there was no panic at any time.

After circling the Tokyo airport for about two hours, the plane landed at 10:45 a.m. For the next five hours the hijacker negotiated with JAL officials, repeatedly refusing to surrender.

Meanwhile, the airline readied a long-range DC8 jet for the flight to Cuba via Vancouver and Mexico and told the hijacker the $2 million had been put aboard

The man released 121 passengers and the three stewardesses, but kept the pilot and two other crew members aboard at gunpoint

The hijacker finally forced the three crew members to accompany him to the DC8 As they boarded, a group of police hidden inside the plane jumped the hijacker and other police rushed up the steps to help

The hijacker was taken to the airport police station

One of the three crewmen he held hostage was an American, Robert Faulkner, 49, of Manistique, Mich., the flight engineer All the passengers were Japanese except one, a West German businessman

The last hijacking in Japan occurred in August 1970 when a man commandeered a domestic airliner with 81 persons aboard over central Japan He was seized when the plane landed to refuel

The most sensational hijacking in Japan occurred in April 1970 when leftist students wielding samurai swords commandeered a JAL jetliner and diverted it to North Korea

Hearing set on 73 budget at Manawa

BY CAROL DIEHL
Post-Crescent Correspondent

MANAWA — A public hearing on the city's proposed $120,062 budget will be conducted at 8 p.m. Nov. 16 in Strum Library.

The 1972 buget was $104,835, with estimated expenditures totaling $94,432.

Estimated receipts for 1973 are $84,320 compared to anticipated receipts for 1972 of $85,684, a decrease of $1,364.

Some $35,742 would be raised by taxation for city purposes in the new budget compared to $33,945 in last year's. While the tax rate shows a slight decrease again, essentially the City Council is attempting to hold the city's portion on the tax roll. The 1972 assessed valuation is $4,907,410 compared to $4,634,520 for 1971. The tax rate for 1973 is $7.28 per $1,000 assessed valuation, a decrease of 4 cents over this year.

Expenses for general government in the proposed budget amont to $12,187 compared to the 1972 estimate of $11,179. Protection of persons and property is $28,700, an increase from 1972's $28,578. The orginal proposal for 1972 called for $24,800 but police and fire expenses raised the actual amount $3,778 above the estimate.

Health and sanitation amounts to $3,650 compared to actual 1972 expenditures of $3,432. Highway expenses are $41,250, up from $36,816. Education and recreation is estimated at $7,000 an increase over 1972's $6,377. Street lighting and relief is a flat $1,500 compared to last year's $831.

In the unclassified section, expenses took a big leap over 1972 from $7,219 to $25,775. The expenses are for principal and interest on two city projects: one for the third well located at the south end of the city at a cost of $13,500 for 1972 and $4,250 for the future construction of the medical clinic.

Eliminated from the city's portion was the nonresident and vocational education payment which will be included on the total tax bill, also listing school district's state and county taxes. This $9,500 estimated tax savings on nonresident and vocational education allowed the city's proposal to hold porportionately with the 1972 budget proposal.

Regents bar UWO student legal aid fees

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — University of Wisconsin System Regents have postponed action on a controversial legal aid plan proposed with student fees at University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh, calling for a complete study of special charges made UW students instead.

The action barred use of about $8,000 in segregated student fees allocated on the Oshkosh campus for retention of an attorney to provide legal assistance to students there.

The regents were told the plan had the backing of large numbers of Oshkosh students and of Chancellor Roger Guiles, but it drew stiff resistance from a host of regents and UW system President John C. Weaver.

Weaver said he opposed adoption of such a program through special fees in a time of "austerity" for the system, that all segregated fees charged students on the campuses of the system should be restudied, and that he personally disapproved of the specific legal aid plan proposed on the Oshkosh campus.

Weaver termed the plan "unfair taxation" of all Oshkosh students to provide legal aid to only those students who want it.

Regent Milton Neshek led opposition to the proposal, saying regents instead should consider putting a lid on the level of segregated fees charged students.

The fees support special programs, such as health services and student newspapers, not covered by state funds.

Neshek said those special student fees are hiked every time an administrator gets an idea which he cannot fund with tax money. If charges continue to rise, he warned, some poor students will be prevented from receiving an education.

While backers of the legal aid plan contend that higher student fees will not result at the UW-Oshkosh, said Neshek, the school intends to raise segregated fees from the current $126 level to $128.50 next year and $131 the year after that, said Neshek.

Some campuses have proposed special fees totalling $160 for the 1974-75 school year, he warned.

Guiles said the plan devised by students was desired on the campus and that suits against the school and state would not result from it. Students need legal counsel while at school, he said, adding that some local people take advantage of students enrolled at UW O.

Regents agreed to table Neshek's move to reject the plan, pending a study of all student fees by Neshek's business and finance committee of the board.

In other actions, the regents also:

— Accepted a $104,000 grant for low interest loans to Blacks, women, Puerto Ricans, Mexicans, and persons from rural areas for medical education, while agreeing to revise a 1962 regent rule barring acceptance of discriminatory gifts and grants.

— Approved a revised long range plan for the UW-Green Bay which alters somewhat current proposals for campus planning but calls for no additional land acquisitions other than those earlier approved by the board as a part of the 1973-75 operating budget request.

— Revised search and screen procedures for chancellors, and system vice presidents to provide for special regent committees to take part in advising faculty-student committees reviewing candidates for those posts.

—Agreed that the Chancellor Robert Swanson does not have to live in the official residence at the UW-Stout, declaring the building unsuitable for such purposes. Chancellors not provided with official residences receive $150 a month in housing allowances.

Men arrested at Chilton for auto theft

CHILTON — Two 19-year-old men wanted on Federal Bureau of Investigation auto theft charges issued in Missouri were apprehended at about 3 p.m. Saturday by Calumet County sheriff's deputies and city police on Madison and Grand streets. The men are Scott Grabowski, route 2, Chilton, and Michael Misner, 2008 Dee St., Schuyler, Neb., according to Calumet County police reports.

City police were notified by FBI agents at about 1:20 p.m. Saturday that a 1966 automobile reported stolen in Missouri was possibly in the Chilton area. The men were seen in the car and later apprehended while driving another vehicle. The missing car was found at the Grabowski residence and has been impounded. Grabowski and Misner are being held on federal auto theft warrants at the Calumet County jail.

Two Chilton men put on probation for possessing marijuana

CHILTON — Two route 1, Chilton men pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of dangerous drugs Friday in Calumet County Court.

Jeffrey Jodar, 19 and Steven Schmahl, 19, appeared before Waupaca County Judge A. Don Zwickey who ordered probation for one year for each defendant. They were found guilty of possessing marijuana.

Two other route 1 Chilton men arrested by Calumet County authorities, David Heus, 20 and Charles Riley, 19, requested a jury trial when they appeared before Zwickey. No date was set for their trial, and the defendants were released after paying $150 bond.

The four men were arrested Oct. 19 at a rented cottage in the Town of Stockbridge.

Chief starts duties

MANAWA — Gene Forsythe, 38, a native of Iola, has assumed the duties of police chief, city council members learned last week. Forsythe replaces retiring Kenneth Stevens, who will serve on a part-time basis as needed.

Forsythe recently was discharged as a U.S. Air Force master sergeant after serving in the military for 20 years. He and his wife and three children are living in Manawa.

Stevens was commended at the council meeting for his 10 years as police chief by Mayor George Jensen on behalf of the council. A certificate of appreciation will be awarded to Stevens on behalf of the city. Ald. Thomas Hoffmann (2nd) of the police and fire commission thanked Stevens for the service and cooperation he has given during his tenure.

In other action, the council authorized the purchase of a used power reversible snow plow at a cost of $425. The plow will be attached to the new truck recently purchased by the city.

Acceptance of a recommendation by the committee on easements, permits and licenses to appoint William Levezow as building inspector was approved on council's motion. Gerald Sabrosky's resignation as building inspector was adopted.

A special meeting has been called for 7:30 p.m. Thursday when the plans for the doctors' clinic building will be presented by Phillips and Associates, Inc., municipal and consulting engineers from Kimberly. The city-owned facility will be constructed on Second Street between Grover and Center streets.

New proposal hopes to improve caliber of assessors in state

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The state Department of Revenue will return to the legislative arena in January with proposals for improving the administration of the unpopular property tax, with the major thrust intended to improve the performance of assessors in many districts.

Now persuaded that the legislature's authorization of a countywide assessment system through an office of county assessor is not likely to win many counties over, the department is preparing a bill that would provide for the certification of town, village and city assessors as to their technical qualifications.

The county assessor plan would remain as an optional alternative, according to the legislation that is being worked out with any advisory committee of property taxpayers that resulted from the sporadic and highly publicized taxpayer "revolts", mostly in rural areas, during the last year.

The assessor certification would be intended to weed out those local assessment officers, typically in the smaller taxing districts and many of them elected, who have no demonstrated technical training to qualify them for their duties.

Meanwhile, the state revenue administrators and the advisory committee are reviewing means for the refinement of the state tax equalization assessment procedure, which aims at establishing full values for property taxes but which has often been under fire because it is based primarily on sampling as afforded by current market activity.

Some persons, including the members of the special advisory committee, have asked why there should be two valuation systems — the state's so-called 100 per cent valuation, and the local assessment which in typical instances is substantially and admittedly below market valuations. There have been suggestions that ultimately the state valuations, now established to assure equitable distribution of taxes covering more than single tax districts including joint school districts and counties, as examples, may replace the local assessed valuation.

But other authorities doubt that such a plan would ever be acceptable, noting that it would not provide the precision that individuals taxed or a home or a small business or a farm would expect and demand.

Resignation of Haas may test success of UW system merger

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Leonard Haas Friday told University of Wisconsin System regents that he will leave his post as executive vice president of the merged system April 1 to return as chancellor of UW-Eau Claire.

The move by Haas, made during a three-hour closed door session of the board, will return him to the campus with which he has had a life-long association.

But it also may test the year old marriage of the former state universities and the old UW.

Regent President W. Roy Kopp announced after the unusually long closed session that System President John C. Weaver will appoint a search and screen committee to find a successor for Haas in the near future, but there is some speculation within the UW System that the post need not be filled.

The post of exeuctive vice president was created for Haas during the prolonged in-fighting that wracked the early days of the merged system. Just weeks earlier he had been elevated to head the state university system, leaving the Eau Claire post to do so.

In a power struggle between the former state universities and the old UW, Haas was installed as the senior vice president of the merged system by victorious state university forces.

His position was set a notch above that of Donald Percy, the vice president of the UW before merger and the business brains of the merged system.

Some factions within the system are arguing that the state universities, assured after a year's experience that merger is not working to the detriment of those schools and that they are not being swallowed up by the UW, no longer need a "protector" in the top echelons of the system.

Those forces, including some regents, suggest that the merged administration can now operate without an officially designated "executive" vice president as the number two post in the system.

Other regents are suggesting equally forcefully, however, that the post should be filled with a person from

CHILTON — County aid for bridge construction is expected to cost approximately $90,773 this year. Most of the construction has been completed.

Leading the towns in aid requests for bridges is the Town of Charlestown, which this year replaced three spans, all more than 100 years old. Two of them were three-arch and one was a two arch bridge. Two were located on the Steiner Road and the other on the Weeks Road. Cost of the bridges for the township was $29,437 with the county matching this sum as its share of aid. The county assumes half of the total cost of the bridge projects in some instances.

The Town of Chilton will construct nine culverts on the Schneider Road and three on the Mueller Road at a cost to the town of $8,648.

Two bridges will be constructed in the Town of Harrison on firelanes eight and 12 at a total cost of $2,145.

The Town of Stockbridge will built two bridges on Moehn and Quinney Roads, costing $1,306. The county will give aid amounting to $1,111. The Town of Woodville requested aid for three culverts at a total cost of $3,028 for Schmide and Elm roads.

Town of Brothertown constructed one culvert on Columbus Road at a cost of $1,318.

Credited to the bridge aid fund is $801 unused in 1971.

Total county aid given the townships amounts to $44,888 with the $801 credit.

'Therapy' of court clouded by new rules

BRILLION — The purpose of the court is to be therapeutic, corrective and rehabilitative, a Waupaca County judge told United Methodist Men of Zion and rural Brillion here last week.

But he added that rules being laid down by the Supreme Court hinder that purpose. "The more rules that are set up, the more the courts are limited in what can be done constructively for an individual," Waupaca County Court Branch 2 Judge Nathan Wiese said.

Every criminal must be advised on certain rights; then his lawyer advises him of further rights so that finally the courts have the complete burden of providing guilt, Wiese said.

The judge said the young people he sees in court have no friends, nothing to participate in the parents who don't seem to care. He believes all behavior is symptomatic of environmental causes. He urged parents to go to church with and spend other time with their children.

He said dealing with delinquent dependents under 18 requires a lot of patience and more than an ordinary interest in the welfare of people.

No new leads turn up in $2,000 theft at Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — City police have turned up no new leads in their investigation into the theft late Wednesday night or early Thursday morning of $2,000 in bills and small change from the Clintonville Cooperative, E. Third Street.

Police Chief M. M. Bodoh said it was not known how entry to the building was gained, but it was believed a lock had been picked.

Entry to the vault was gained by knocking off the combination dial and driving it through the door with such skill that a vial of tear gas escaped unreleased, Bodoh said. The work of getting into the safe was completed by knocking off the hinges, peeling the outer cover and breaking the high density concrete in the door of the safe.

Bodoh reported that a .22-cal. Remington rifle also was taken from the safe.

CLINTONVILLE — John Harris, 19, of 18 E. 12th St., last week was fined $75 and costs by Judge Nathan Wiese in Waupaca County Court Branch 2 on a charge of shining deer while possessing firearms.

Wiese also found Duane Seelig, 22, route 2, Clintonville, guilty of shining deer and carrying a strung bow in an automobile. Seelig was fined a total of $100 and costs.

At 9:50 p.m. Friday, the squad was called to the B&R Tavern, S. Main Street, to assist Norman Skaggs, Mt. Carmel, Ill., who is currently living at the Hotel Marson here. He had become ill but was not hospitalized.

The squad was called at 1:25 a.m. Saturday when a fight was reported in progress at the Parkview Hotel. Archie Wedde and Tony Olson, who reportedly were fighting, were transported to the Clintonville Community Hospital for treatment.

Congressional, legislative races to be decided in Tuesday voting

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent staff writer

Fox Valley voters will send a new 8th District congressman to Washington and choose a new state senator and a new Assembly representative in Tuesday's elections, while also settling contests between numerous incumbents and their challengers.

The battles for seats where the incumbent has for one reason or another stepped down have generally been hard-fought by both sides, while incumbents in other districts have tended to campaign little despite some energetic opposition attempts to unseat them.

The 8th District congressional race has seen a media blitz studded with appearances by big-name national leaders from both parties pitching for the candidates.

State Rep. Harold Froehlich of Appleton has had leading Republicans from Vice President Spiro Agnew on down campaigning personally for him in the district.

The Rev. Robert Cornell of De Pere countered with an appearance by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Cornell and Froehlich also have been running a high volume of 30-second television campaign ads over Green Bay-based television stations. They include Cornell plugs by Wisconsin Democratic Senators Gaylord Nelson and William Proxmire, and Froehlich support from the retiring 28-year incumbent, Rep. John W. Byrnes of Green Bay.

The only state legislative race that has produced a similar outpouring of television advertising is the 2nd Senate District contest between Democrat James DeLorme of De Pere and Republican Thomas Petri of rural Fond du Lac.

The 2nd District seat is being vacated by Sen. Myron Lotto of rural Green Bay, who was an unsuccessful Republican primary candidate for 8th District congressman.

Campaign spending has been a peripheral issue in that race, with the two candidates otherwise sticking close to their respective party lines on state legislative issues.

DeLorme recently attacked Petri's out-of-state financial support, including substantial contributions from New York and Washington sources. Petri, who was an aide on a special White House task force staff before returning to Wisconsin, said the out-of-state funds were from friends he had made while on the Washington assignment.

Both sides issued lists of Petri campaign contributors and amounts, but the list produced by a group supporting DeLorme and containing the heaviest amount of out-of-state money covered the primary election period, while Petri produced a list of more recent contributions which ran heavily to in-state donations.

The third race in which newcomers are seeking the seat of an incumbent is in Appleton's 42nd Assembly District, where Froehlich's congressional candidacy removed him from the running after five consecutive two-year terms.

The Republican entrant is Realtor Toby Roth, and the Democratic candidate is Thomas Lonsway, manager of a local cooperative.

Both candidates have waged extensive door-to-door campaigns, distributing leaflets through periodic canvassing expeditions by volunteers

Lonsway also borrowed a page from the successful campaign tactics of Mayor James Sutherland last spring, distributing a questionnaire and later releasing the results.

Both candidates also have rung doorbells in person, and who has done more face-to-face electioneering is a question that gets a different response, depending on which side is asked. Both candidates are aware that Froehlich placed heavy stress on personal campaigning in his early campaigns.

Based on the energy and apparent financial output by candidates and their organizations in each of the three districts where the incumbent is stepping down, the outcome could be close.

The ultimate deciding factors may include such things as the coattail effect of the two major-party presidential candidates and the lack of statewide contests including a race for the governorship.

In the legislative races, the record of Gov. Patrick Lucey and his Democratic state administration, and the Democrat-controlled Assembly, have been focal points of candidates on both sides.

In other Fox Valley area contests, a veteran Republican state senator, an incumbent GOP Assembly representative and a Democratic Assembly incumbent are facing opposition

Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, has waged a token campaign to defend his seat against Appleton Democrat Michael Mack, who has attacked the incumbent on a variety of issues ranging from the tax relief topic that has figured highly in all races to Lorge's campaign spending.

State Rep. Ervin Conradt, R-Shiocton, has similarly ignored the Democratic challenge from Miss Cynthia Thorpe of Hortonville, a recent University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh graduate.

In the southeastern corner of Outagamie County and extending to southern Brown County, State Rep William Rogers. D-Kaukauna, is being challenged by Dennis Satola, leader of a Republican college student organization.

The American Party has fielded candidates in two local races, entering Clyde Bunker of Green Bay in the 8th District congressional contest and Edward Duquaine in the 2nd District Senate race. Both candidates won spots on the ballot through write-in votes in the September primary, but their presence has been all but unnoticed amidst the electioneering of their major-party rivals.

within the former state university system to insure a balance of the pre merger systems at the topmost levels of the UW System.

Weaver was the pre-merger head of the UW. Percy's counterpart as the other vice president of the UW System is Robert Winter, drawn from the old state universities to be the administrative vice president under Weaver. A third vice president was brought in from Minnesota.

Kopp said that under new regent procedures approved at Friday's board session, he will move in the near future to name a special regent committee to be involved in the selection process of a successor.

Haas stepped up from the Eau Claire campus presidency to head the state university system in October, 1971. He was named executive vice president of the UW System following merger.

At the time of his departure from the Eau Claire campus, he was given the option of returning to the post at any time until July, 1973. Richard Hibbard was named acting chancellor at the same time.

Hibbard died last month of a heart attack.

Haas said that the death changed his time table and forced an immediate decision on his future.

He had served as president of WSU-Eau Claire for 12 years before taking the state university system post, and has been on the campus before becoming president of the school.

Outagamie day hospital moves to new location

The Outagamie County Health Center's day hospital, recently relocated to 411 W. Sixth St., opened at 9 a.m. today.

The community approach to psychiatric help will operate out of the county-owned home, instead of its previous health center location, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Evening and weekend hours will be arranged in the future.

The health center's volunteer association has furnished the house and will stage style shows, dinner dances and other events to help defray the $1,000 outfitting cost. Mrs. Althea Deltgen, association president, said other organizations still may make monetary and gift donations toward the furnishing project by contacting her at the Appleton office of the American Automobile Association.

Kitchen utensils and canned goods still are needed for the house, Mrs. Deltgen added. Day hospital members (they are not called patients) prepared their noon meal at the health center in occupational therapy facilities. Since the new house has kitchen facilities, members will continue to prepare their meals.

THE Post-Crescent

Vote tomorrow!

One of the major readings pundits have been getting on election trends in recent weeks is a considerable degree of apathy on the part of voters.

There is no profit in speculating as to the cause of such apathy. But it is vitally important for all citizens of this area to realize that this is a crucial election in many respects.

Every voter should participate in the choosing of a president for our country.

The man who is elected Eighth District Congressman tomorrow may well serve this district for many years to come.

Control of both houses of our state legislature could well hang on the way the vote goes in this area.

And with the growing emergence of county government as the most important unit of local government in Wisconsin, choosing our constitutional officers certainly has to be important also.

There is every important reason for every citizen to cast his vote tomorrow.

Neanderthalism in California

California is made up of a lot of way-out people as the twenty-two referendums on the Nov. 7 ballot indicate. But some of its leaders overlook causes to get at results.

Governor Ronald Reagan's Social Welfare Board has been understandably concerned about the continued rise in illegitimate births in California. Its proposed solutions sound right out of the Middle Ages.

First, the board would make mandatory the taking away and placing for adoption of a third illegitimate child. It would require the paternity of an illegitimate child to be made known within six months of birth or take away the child. It would take away the child of any unwed mother under 16. Its reasoning in all three proposal is that the mother is "morally depraved."

One may well question the intelligence of any woman who has three illegitimate children in these days of readily available contraceptives and information on birth control. But the worth of an individual as a parent isn't always the amount of brains. Nor is it necessarily one's age or whether an unwed mother wants to involve the father. The latter proposal was worked out to require paternal responsibility but that may be more than making it a matter of law.

Critics of the proposals use terms like "monstrous," "barbarism" and "neanderthalism" and they are appropriate. But the board does have on its side the probability that an adopted child would be more likely to have a fulfilled life than one brought up by an unmarried mother. However, it has neglected to take into account the hard fact that the majority of the illegitimate children in California are black or Chicano and they are not as easy to find adoptive homes for as the white healthy child.

The board has also overlooked both the climate of communities in which an illegitimate child may grow up and today's trends. It may be that a Chicano child would be more adjusted and happy in a largely Chicano community if the circumstances of his birth are of far less concern than they would be in a puritanical group with opinions like those of members of the welfare board. There is also the hard fact that not only are more unwed mothers keeping their children in all parts of American society today; many "singles" are adopting children. The stigma for both child and parent is fading. A woman with several illegitimate children might even have planned it that way.

The concern should not be lost, however. All our experience with schools and other social organizations has demonstrated that a child's home is the primary influence in his life as a child and in his adult years. The quality of that home, not in material possessions but in love and understanding and concern, cannot be overestimated. All things being equal even today an unwed mother is not as likely to be able to provide those factors as what we have come to consider a more normal home.

But the harsh approach of the California Welfare Board is no answer at all.

Arabs ignore women's lib

The more conservative in this country may grumble and gnash their teeth about what they consider to be the arrogance of women's lib. But imagine what it's like in the Arab countries!

The Arabs do not recognize women remotely in the same way that men are accepted. The female role is largely confined to the home and child bearing and there is no nonsense about such wholly masculine pursuits as holding political office, voting or owning property. But some Arabs at the United Nations are getting the message that it isn't the same the whole world over.

"For the first time in the Arab world, the problem of the Arab woman has been brought onto a public stage in a meaningful way," a Kuwait woman delegate to a UNICEF conference recently said. "If these recommendations are implemented, a new kind of woman would emerge and you would have a new kind of man, too."

This may be exactly what most of the men in Arab countries fear. And it is obvious that there is a great deal of distance between the suggestions for reform and the actual putting of recommendations into action.

A study by the United Nations Children's Fund has reported an extensive array of factors that could generally improve women's role in Arab countries. They include a year's leave of absence from any employment for child bearing, allowances for working women with children as well as for a father, a legal end to polygamy and expanded day care and maternal health facilities.

But while the men and probably many of the women may resist change in the Arab countries, some statistics show that it isn't all a matter of prestige or favoritism. In Egypt, for instance, less than 5 per cent of the work force is female. But does the fact that women's place is accepted as being almost exclusively in the home mean that things in the kitchen and nursery are necessarily all that much better?

The mortality rate of infants in Egypt is 11.9 per cent and 15 per cent in the equally backward Sudan and these are almost all curable diseases. Arab women "are not fully aware of the proper way to bring up children, regarding health, nutrition, education or social qualities," the study said. The education of women is slight in most Arab countries and political involvement almost nil. It is no accident that low scores on all these factors go together Another one is the few number of Arab women who use contraceptives in a part of the world where there is no religious objection. It is all part of the attempt to keep women out of the mainstream.

Other recommendations of the study are for increases in professional and scientific schooling, in-service training, reduced work hours for mothers with small children, sex education and family planning in schools and the sharing of household tasks by men.

It's going to take quite a while in Egypt

No voter apathy in political race

MADISON — The day preceding important elections tends to be occupied with after thoughts and hindsights by the sideline student of political affairs and, no doubt, by many a reflective politician.

Was there ever an important national election that exhibited less of the contrived and even vulgar clamor for public attention to which the citizen was exposed so heavily in other times? The bumper strips and cartops, the public rallies, the doorbell ringing by partisans more zealous than helpful, the ferocious arguments at the corner tap. Also the odds-making by the self-nominated political experts, even the desecration of the countryside with the carefully doctored and blown up likenesses of the eager volunteer for the service of the republic, the state, the town, or whatever?

Some reporters have exploited one of their favorite words as they describe what they have found in their attendance upon candidates and their entourages. There is "apathy" they say in chorus and with such repetition that the word quickly grates on the ear. But what is apathy? How is it ascertained?

What did they expect?

One guesses that some of those observers fresh from their college history books somehow expected the torchlight parades, corn liquor on the village green, the bands and the monster rallies accompanied by the frenzied partisanship of earlier generations.

But such ingredients of the political campaign have long since disappeared in most localities. One of the reasons for the indifference of so many persons to the goings-on at the national conventions this year, to the dismay of the television entrepreneurs, was the transparent artificiality, even puerility, of many of the performances.

If the communications revolution and the enormous public investment in public education have had any effect, this should be the most sophisticated generation in the history of the American political experience. This reporter chooses to believe that it is in fact the best prepared generation of voters since universal suffrage.

But the technology of politics has been severely altered. The individual is no longer the conscious target. Even the occasional rally-staged for the presidential aspirant is not primarily intended to persuade the crowd in the auditorium or the stadium, but to set the stage for paid television and radio and to validate press accounts.

Costs are so enormous that there is little left for the trappings of sentimental memory in the histories. The expenditure is so awesome, in fact, that every politician and political writer dry behind the ears knows that all things being reasonably equal, the man with the most money at his command will be the favorite in the speculations, and, too often, the favorite in the actual balloting.

The new methodology of politics renders analysis of prospects in a jurisdiction without a responsible — and costly — polling service quite meaningless. The voter does his listening and thinking before the television tube and in private perusal of his newspaper. Thus much political "analysis" is merely the citation of predidictable, self-serving and calculating claims and counterclaims of the professional politicians.

Inevitably, there will be posturing complaints during the next few days about the default of many tens of thousands of eligible voters. After a lifetime spent a few feet removed from the political stage, the political reporter develops some tolerance for the election day absentees, and strong doubts about the "be sure to vote" preachments uttered in pious rote.

If there is any able-bodied person who fails to record his choices voluntarily, the chances are that he won't deliver a responsible ballot if he is dragooned. Similarly, the detached bystander of politics develops a suspicion about the motivation of those who sometimes talk about compulsory voting or penalties for the non voter. Forcing the ignorant or the indifferent is risky business.

Some of the absentees, it is also useful to remember, are expressing themselves in their own way. For a person of strong convictions, that can be decisive expression too.

Writers hate actors because of jealousy

Ben Hecht once wrote a book called "I Hate Actors!" It was an honest title, because all writers hate actors.

They pretend they hate them because actors are shallow and vain and often quite stupid. But those are not the real reasons. Writers hate actors because they are jealous of them.

They are jealous of the fact that actors get all the credit for the dialog written by the authors. Some people think that actors make up their own words; and even the more sophisticated members of the audience imagine that comedians are quite funny fellows, in and of themselves.

Writers know otherwise. They know that 90 per cent of actors are utterly lost without their battery of script writers in the wings. And that the terribly funny fellow on the stage is about as witty as a hitching post in his private life. The writers itch desperately for the credit the performers get.

One of the few personally funny comedians of our time was the late Fred Allen, who was also a talented writer of his own material. This was about as rare as a writer who could play the lead in "Wuthering Heights."

Allen once remarked about Jack Benny's offstage talent: "Jack couldn't ad lib a belch after a Hungarian dinner." And most comedians are equally lost without thefour, six, eight, and sometimes ten anonymous hands who have diligently prepared their "material" for years.

I thought of this the other night, when I peered into the family room where the children were watching the 10th anniversary program of the Johnny Carson show on TV.

There, aligned on the couch opposite Johnny were Jack Benny, Joey Bishop, Don Rickles, George Burns — a million dollar's worth of comic talent. But none of them had brought a "routine" along, and so the program had all the verve of a park-bench conversation at an old people's home. Everybody on stage was desperately uncomfortable.

Then Rowan and Martin entered, sat down, and began to banter. Immense relief registered on everyone's face — this comedy team, thank God, had come prepared with a "routine," and suddenly the whole program took off. The unseen and unknown writers were hard at work.

Writers don't hate actors because actors are handsome or popular or get paid immense sums for soft work and easy hours; they hate them because the performers get all the credit for the brains and humor and flashing personality belonging to somebody else. If Bob Hope's stable went on strike, he'd be about as funny as a dentist with halitosis.

Y closed to A.M. joggers

Editor, Post-Crescent:

I wanted to express the feelings shared by those of us who exercise frequently at Appleton's YMCA. Since early Roman times men and women who did daily workouts were always in the best of shape: this is just a simple "if P then Q." There are many of us A.M. joggers in Appleton who find protection from rain, snow and wild dogs within the confines of the YMCA's gym. We do our running, then do several hundred sit-ups, shower, and are on our way to face the world in a healthy happy mood.

Recently, however, the management made notice that beginning Nov. 6th no one will be allowed in the YMCA until 8:30 a.m. Their reasons included: 1. Lack of supervision at 7 a.m. — which could lead to legal problems if anyone were to injure himself. As far as we joggers know — this is the only valid reason for locking up the gym. The problems arising from this order are many. Those of us who do exercise so early in the morning (usually before sunrise) do so because our business does not allow for any break. Even if we could hold off until 8:30, the new opening time, the women's gymnastic hour would be in session.

When I first began my career at Lawrence University I was in love with Appleton and her new YMCA. It is now my third year here — I still love Appleton — but her YMCA is quickly losing its appeal. The weights are out of shape, the management is cold. These are barriers easily overcome by upholding one's Christian morals. What cannot be overcome is the reality that the bureaucracy in the Young Men's Christian Association cannot find some way to accommodate those who patronize them most — the A.M. joggers. — To who's health you ask? To our health.

Decision on solid waste

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

The Outagamie County Board plans on making a decision respecting the handling of solid waste materials on November 14th. This decision will have a significant effect on every taxpayer in Outagamie County. It could not only involve the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars initially but would be an item of great expense throughout future years. It involves enough tax dollars to merit the genuine concern of every resident of this county.

The County Board will consider several different ways of handling solid waste. The basic choice will be between incineration and shredding. I have made some personal effort to learn a few things about the different methods being considered. I am advised that the incineration method has been used by Calumet County. This method has met all standards set by the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources with respect to emission of smoke, etc. The material is reduced to 10% or less by weight, covering all types of solid waste material. This eliminates more than 90% by weight of the material left to be handled after incineration.

The shredding method leaves the same weight of material to be hauled away to a land-fill. The residue left after incineration is no problem in that it will not rot or disintegrate, or will it emit odor. It will not have to be covered as would the shredded material. It will not create problems with respect to rats and other vermin, odors, etc.

Finally, it is my understanding that the cost per ton of handling the solid waste can be done cheaper by incineration than by the shredding process. I am still looking into the mater and seeking additional information. It seems to me, however, that we are involved in a situation that will probably cost millions of dollars now and in the future. I would hope every taxpayer in Outagamie County would investigate the matter on his own — and that our County Board representatives would weigh this matter with great care before arriving at a judgment of this importance.

Solid waste progress

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

The chairman of the Zoning Committee of the County Board stated, "We have studied this (Solid Waste) to death. We have statistics coming out of our ears, but no decision has been made." The Coordinating Committee (9/6/72) stated in part, "The committee should have professional presentations of all avenues of disposal." The County Executive in his statement to the board said several questions have been raised about solid waste management which should be answered. With this position of high county officials and committees it was not unreasonable for the board to delay a decision on acceptance of proposals to the county.

Newspaper reports in far too many instances are the only statistics and data available to the board. Without newspaper reports, board members would have little knowledge of what is going on in county government, before meeting day, unless members are able to attend all committee meetings and sometimes to be in two places at once to cover simultaneous meetings.

Mayor Sutherland has stated his position in a letter of 10/20, which follows the remarks of Robert Miller, Public Works Director, verbally to the Zoning Committee (10/19), "Participation is dependent on economic feasibility." Mayor LaPlant stated Kaukauna is not interested at this time because of its own waste disposal plan and contract commitments. Other rural communities also have disposal commitments or adequate facilities that they would be reluctant to change for economic reasons.

In the hammermill operation costs are projected at $1.75 per ton; incineration projected at $1.29 per ton. These figures do not include amortization of capital expenditures in the plant, hauling to final disposal site, and costs at the disposal area. There are no guarantees from proponents of the systems including county officials, enabling a municipality to contract for the service based on a set cost comparable to their present known costs of disposal. The proposal that costs of operation including capital costs be picked up by the county would only hide costs of a solid waste system. This proposal is contrary to authorities in solid waste plans who recommend that the costs of a solid waste disposal system should be returned to the county on a user fee basis. This principle is further upheld by, "An Analysis of the County Solid Waste Management Law," (Wis. Counties 1/72). The state statute also appears to distinguish between capital costs and operating costs, which is the legislative intent according to Robert Mortensen of the Wisconsin County Boards Association.

But like all law and legislative intent there is a hidden factor that may allow county officials to establish service districts for waste management, whereby it may allocate costs to districts through a general tax on the property within the district or by charges to the cities, villages or towns whose territory is within the district. Unfortunately, joining might not be voluntary, and problems could parallel annexation problems. Further pressure could be solicited from the DNR to force the municipalities to accept a regional system by strict enforcement in Outagamie County of current regulations based on the regional plant availability, irrespective of costs comparison.

What are some conclusions that we might reach:

1. I believe the county board adequately handled the resolution of a dual problem of entry and handling the solid waste question, by voting 39-0, to accept the responsibility of regional waste disposal and by dividing this question from the system to be chosen.

2. I am confident the county will support capital expenditure for a solid waste system when the following are agreed upon by the municipal users:

a. Choice of system to process waste (This is best left to a decision by users, as they will pay operating costs — indirectly the county could choose the system based on municipal user direction)

b. Location for method or processing facility has been chosen — site must be in accessible region to users.

c. Per ton or capita costs for disposal method or system is agreed upon by users and cover full cost of operation (may exclude some capital expenditure)

d. Adequate site for disposal of processed waste is available — can be provided by county.

A concession by the board to pick up capital costs is an adequate commitment. Further negotiation should be made with users who in all likelihood would be Appleton for they hold the key to regional solid waste disposal by the volume generated and available data of comparable costs. An economic disadvantage of a new system might be offset whereby counties are authorized to engage in research and demonstration projects to improve solid waste management and recycling and contract for grant funds for these purposes, or establish a set price per ton the county is requested to absorb in a pilot project if grants are not available.

The county board will function when provided with proper facts to reach intelligent conclusions. I do not believe a complete disclosure of related costs were provided for the board to pass on both questions. You can be thankful the board is not hastily making a decision contrary to sound economic planning because we are all very eager to find a solution to solid waste disposal. Remember that when we speak of garbage, we refer to it as "Solid Waste Management." Let us not lose sight of the full term and include management in our decision.

Prince Philip cites problems produced by new industrial society

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip says the modern industrial society is producing unhealthy communities in which mugging, drug-taking and child-bashing are rampant.

"Somehow or other we must find the causes and the cures for these diseases," the prince said Wednesday in an address to the Royal College of Medical Practitioners after being installed as president.

Prince Philip, the husband of Queen Elizabeth II, said the industrial society is creating a new type of community, "completely different from anything in previous human experience. Its body, in the shape of dense housing, vertically and horizontally, is different.

"Symptoms of unhealthy communities are becoming increasingly obvious.

He cited petty crime, mugging, drug abuse, gang warfare, vandalism, child abuse and a growing disregard for the law.

Games interrupted as CBS strike continues

NEW YORK (AP) — Severed cables prevented the televising of the New York Jets-Washington Redskins football game Sunday, the third day of a strike by 1,200 cameramen, technicians and engineers against the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The strike also forced the cancellation of the network's "Face the Nation" interview program when Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern declined to cross picket lines.

Most other network programs went on as scheduled, with supervisors manning cameras and performing other technical duties normally handled by the striking members of the Radio and Television Broadcast Engineers, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The Jets-Redskins game was to have been carried by 90 stations outside the metropolitan area. Instead, the stations received the Chicago Bears-Detroit Lions game.

Supervisors discovered the severed cables about an hour before the kickoff. When they tried to bring other cables from trucks parked outside Shea Stadium a scuffle broke out with some of the 75 pickets.

Potice arrested three persons they described as CBS technicians. They said Arthur Shine, 41, was charged with criminal tampering after he was seen trying to kick a cable loose from one of the trucks.

The others were Joseph Cabobbo, 51, of Franklin Square, charged with disorderly conduct and public harassment, and Vincent Bartilucci, 49, of Freeport, charged with harassment, obstruction and resisting arrest.

In Milwaukee, where the San Francisco 49ers-Green Bay Packers game was played, nine television cables were reported cut and the picture was lost for eight minutes at the start of the second half until repairs were made.

The strike affected CBS-owned television and radio stations in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago and St. Louis and network-owned radio stations in Boston and San Francisco.

The walkout involves a dispute over jurisdiction of technical equipment under terms of a proposed new three-year contract. The old pact expired Oct. 1. No new talks were scheduled.

A network spokesman said no difficulties were anticipated in handling election coverage Tuesday night because many of the cameras were already in set positions.

Train fire fatal to 28 in Japan

FUKUI, Japan (AP) — Fire broke out early today aboard an express train as it was traveling through an eight-mile tunnel, and 28 persons were killed, most of them by the smoke.

Another 460 persons were injured, 15 of them seriously; 286 others made their way safely through the smoke.

The train was en route from Osaka, southwest of Tokyo, to Aomori, in northern Japan. Many of the passengers were returning from weekend holidays.

The fire started in the dining car, the 11th of the 15 coaches, after most of the passengers had gone to sleep. A cook said the car had stopped serving at midnight, and officials believed a stove might not have been turned off properly, or there was an electrical fault.

The train crew donned gas masks and tried to put out the fire, but they were forced back when flames engulfed the dining car. Then they uncoupled the five last coaches and tried to drive the other 10 out of the tunnel, but the electric system broke down.

About 100 passengers were rescued by a train running on another track; the others stumbled through the tunnel.

The crew confined the fire to the dining car and put it out after eight hours. Then another train hauled the wreckage from the tunnel.

Clark claims that FBI had file on Eagleton

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark says that while he was in the Justice Department he read an FBI file on Thomas F. Eagleton that included details of the Missouri senator's treatment for exhaustion and depression.

The FBI denies it ever investigated Eagleton.

Eagleton was hospitalized in 1960, 1964 and 1966. After details of his illnesses became known last summer, Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern dropped Eagleton as his vice-presidential runningmate.

Clark said in a telephone interview that he learned from an FBI file of Eagleton's medical history in 1965. At the time, Clark said, he was deputy attorney general and Eagleton was one of several men under consideration for appointment as an assistant attorney general.

As a result, he said, an FBI check was conducted and it unearthed details of Eagleton's medical history. Eagleton was then lieutenant governor of Missouri.

When an FBI spokesman was asked if such a file existed and if it had been distributed during the past year, he replied: "We have never conducted an investigation of Sen. Eagleton."

Last month, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported that the McGovern campaign organization was investigating reports that the Committee for the Re-Election of the President had leaked the information about Eagleton's illnesses after Eagleton was nominated in July.

The Missouri senator said in an interview that he had no evidence that the leak came from Republican or governmental sources.

Eagleton said also that if he had been under consideration for a federal appointment in 1965, he never knew about it and had no knowledge of any FBI investigation.

Clark said that such background checks routinely cross the desk of the deputy attorney general. He said that he did not feel Eagleton's medical history was serious enough to disqualify him for a Justice Department appointment.

Clark said his recollection was that Eagleton was under consideration for appointment as head of the department's criminal division, a post that eventually went to Fred Vinson.

Nicholas DeB. Katzenbach, who was attorney general at the time, said he did not recall that Eagleton was ever considered for such an appointment. But, he said, he couldn't be certain.

Katzenbach said it would be normal procedure to run an FBI check on a prospective appointee before the individual was sounded out about the job.

He said it was possible that someone on the White House staff could have asked for such a check.

Meyer Lansky leaves Israel

TEL AVIV (AP) — Underworld financial wizard Meyer Lansky dropped out of sight in Western Europe early today after slipping quietly out of Israel.

An official of the Interior Ministry said Lansky took a Swissair jetliner to Geneva and got off there. But Swiss police sources said he had been barred from Switzerland more than a year ago, spent only a shortly time in the country Sunday night and then left again.

"We do not know his final destination," a spokesman for the Swiss government said.

One report said he traveled under a pseudonym.

Minority candidates bid for national posts

BY BOB GREENE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Blacks and Mexican-Americans are on ballots for national office in many states this year in what one minority leader has called a consciousness for self-deter mination.

Three blacks and two Mexican-Americans are running for the Senate, 49 blacks and 11 Spanish-surnamed candidates for the House. One black is running for governor of Illinois, and one Mexican-American is in the Texas gubernatorial race.

"There's a consciousness this year ... that addresses itself to self-determination in the broadest sense," said Domingo Nick Reyes, executive director of the Mexican-American Anti-Defamation Committee.

Of the three blacks running for the Senate, only one—incumbent Republican Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts—is expected to win.

The Congressional Black Caucus, composed of the black members of the House, is assured of gaining additional strength as all 13 incumbents and two others—Yvonne Brathwaite Burke in Los Angeles and Barbara Jordan in Houston— are favored.

In Tennessee, J.O. Patterson Jr., Democratic state Senate whip and a Memphis city councilman, is seeking to unseat Republican Rep. Dan Kuykendall. Patterson defeated four whites in the primary and is running in a recently redrawn district that takes in several new black areas in Memphis and excludes some white suburban areas.

Given a better-than-even chance of winning Georgia's 5th Congressional District seat is Andrew Young, executive vice president of The Southern Christian Leadership Conference. A former aide to the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Young faces Republican state Rep. Rodney Cook in a district that includes most of Atlanta and several affluent and predominantly white suburbs north of the city.

Another black, Keith Jones, 26, is campaigning for the Georgia seat as a write-in candidate under the banner of the Socialist Workers party.

Two blacks running for the Senate are not given a chance of winning.

However, John L. LeFlore, National Democratic Party of Alabama (NDPA) candidate from Mobile, could decide the hotly contested race between incumbent Democratic Sen. John Sparkman and his Republican opponent, Winton M. Blount, former postmaster general. LeFlore's candidacy could pull black votes away from Sparkman and increase Blount's chances.

Thomas Dennis, 54-year-old state chairman of the Michigan Communist party, is seeking the Senate seat held by Republican Robert Griffin.

In Illinois, Ishmael Flory is the Communist party candidate for governor.

Brooke, a Republican in a state where registered Democrats outnumberRepublicans 2 to 1, appears headed for a landslide victory over Democrat John J. Droney.

Black Caucus members almost assured of returning to Congress are Ronald V. Dellums and Augustus Hawkins, California; Walter E. Fauntroy, District of Columbia; Ralph Metcalfe and George Collins, Illinois; Parren Mitchell, Maryland; John Conyers and Charles Diggs, Michigan; William Clay, Missouri; Shirley Chisholm and Charles Rangel, New York; Louis Stokes, Ohio, and Robert Nix, Pennsylvania.

La Raza Unida party, a predominantly Mexican-American organization, is fielding slates in several states.

Secundino Salazar, 42, is running for the Senate against Republican Sen. Gordon Alyott in Colorado. In Texas, the La Raza Unida candidate for governor is Ramsey Muniz, 30, a Waco lawyer and former football star at Baylor University.

Spanish-surnamed candidates in House contests include Cuban-born Evelio Estrolla, a Republican, in Florida. Reps. Herman Badillo, D-N.Y.; Henry Gonzales, D-Tex.; Eligio de las Garza, D-Tex.; Edward Roybal, D-Calif., and Manuel Lujan, R-N.M., are expected to retain their seats, while Marie Pauline Serna, 27, is a decided underdog in her efforts to unseat Rep. James D. McKevitt, R-Colo.

Blacks and other minorities are expected to increase their numbers in state legislatures and in statewide races.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again... Anacin.

Each year, doctors give over 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin®.

Those low bass notes can be tricky when the Marantz 1060 amplifier socks it thru a pair of Advent speakers.

Most people think you have to crank the bass control full on to get that satisfying bass "crunch."

Not with Marantz. When Marantz claims 60 watts RMS continuous power, they mean it. And not just in the mid range either, but all the way down to 20 hz! (We know it's true; we checked it out on our new McAdam Digital Audio Analyzer).

The smaller Advent speakers can faithfully reproduce those super low bass notes. Lower, cleaner, solider than any other speaker; even those costing three times as much.

To top it off, we have included the great new Swiss made Lenco L-25 turntable and a SHURE M-93 elliptical magnetic cartridge.

We truly believe this $419.00 system will out-perform any system in town costing twice the price. We mean it. Just $419.00.

China ready to ship frozen Peking Duck

HONG KONG (AP) — Chefs in China have perfected a quick-freeze process for one of their greatest delicacies — Peking Duck, a Hong Kong Communist Newspaper has reported.

Ta Kung Pao in a dispatch from Canton said the new product was served to newsmen and Hong Kong businessmen at the current Canton Trade Fair and "all reported they were the equal in every respect to fresh-roasted ducks."

An official of the fair said China is ready to ship the frozen ducks to foreign customers.

Price 'bulge' seen in fourth quarter

Another price "bulge" will send your cost of living sharply upward in the next 45 days — reflecting price increases deferred until after election day as well as what have come to be "normal" increases for most necessities and luxuries.

The rise in the cost of living index to be disclosed in late December — in the Consumer Price Index, watched around the world for clues to how the U.S. is managing its inflation — will almost surely more than match the rise in the September index disclosed a few days ago. That increase was ½ per cent in a single month, equivalent to an annual rate of 6 per cent.

It would be silly for anyone to try to make a precise guess about a statistic not yet measured and not to be released until weeks from now — and I'm not silly. But even administration spokesmen who are most vehement in their defense of President Nixon's economic policies agree that he won't hit his target of a 1972 inflation rate down to the 2 to 3 per cent range by yearend.

News being postponed

Even they foresee a "bulge" and they call it by that name. And they are understandably relieved that the news is to be postponed until all the votes are in.

In fact, I now find in Washington a tolerance — an acceptance, if you will — of an annual rate of inflation in the 3 to 3½ per cent range in the years ahead. That would be 3 or 3½ per cent a year — year after year after year — with the cost-of-living increases built into the economic structure and compounded.

What would that mean to you?

Before I get to that, let me underline this vital point:

We are turning in a much better record of controlling inflation this year than any other major country, most dramatically better than the performance of Europe's industrialized nations.

Europe's rate increasing

The dollar's loss in purchasing power in the first seven months of '72 averaged only 3.2 per cent, according to calculations of the First National City Bank of New York, well below the depreciation rate for the currencies of all other prime industrial nations and comparing with an average loss of 6.1 per cent for Europe's currencies. What's more, as our rate of inflation has decelerated, Europe's rate has shown increasing signs of acceleration due to national policies to encourage business expansion and to an inflationary influx of unwanted foreign funds.

But we have not managed to do more than slow our inflation from a "gallop ing" rate of 5 per cent or more to a "jogging" rate of 3 to 3½ per cent.

In the price-wage freeze of August-November, 1971, the annual rate of price rise was a mere "creep" of 1.9 per cent. In the first quarter of 1972, it was back up to 3.2 per cent. In the second and third quarters of this year, it was back up to 3.6 per cent. When the fourth quarter is toted up, the rate will not be down. There is indisputably a bias toward ever higher prices in our land and in the world of the late 20th century.

And now, there's hardly a word among informed economists of a return to the "creeping" rate of 1½ to 2 per cent — the rate which prevailed in the pre-Vietnam period and which was the equivalent of price stability in an economy as dynamic as ours. For at 1 per cent a year, it would take almost three quarters of a century for prices to double; that would not have an important impact on any individual's spending, saving or investing habits.

35 years to double

At 2 per cent, it would take more than 35 years for prices to double; that also wouldn't have much impact on any individual family's financial habits.

But an annual rate of 3 to 3.5 per cent year after year? At that rate, prices would double and triple in a quarter-century or so. Well before this century ends, a 3 per cent annual rate would have cut the dollar's buying power in half.

At 3 per cent inflation, you would be brutally penalized if you put your savings in fixed-income mediums — e.g., highgrade bonds, savings accounts, insurance, the like.

At a 3 per cent yearly rate, you would have to obtain an interest return high enough to offset the 3 per cent plus income taxes AND to give you a return too. Rates this high are not generally available on high-grade investments now.

The cost of housing would soar. The cost of education would skyrocket. Savings habits would be drastically changed, spending would become much more reckless.

Yet, this is the outlook under today's economic policies.

Rabies cases increase in state

MADISON — "An increased number of rabies cases has been reported in Wisconsin this year," says Dr. R. G. Shipman, director of the bureau of field services with the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture.

Shipman reports that there have been 121 positive cases of rabies diagnosed at the State Laboratory of Hygiene during the first 9 months of 1972. These include 68 skunks, 20 dogs, 19 cattle, 5 bats, 4 cats, 4 fox and one horse. "By comparison, there were only 59 cases diagnosed during all of 1971," he says. Increases have also been noted in most other states.

Since skunks serve as a reservoir for rabies in Wisconsin, farmers, hunters and all persons engaged in outdoor activities should avoid skunks and other wild animals. Farmers are reminded that cattle are among the most susceptible of all domestic species.

"Children should also be cautioned against playing with wild animals," Shipman says.

Shipman reports a large increase of rabies cases in dogs and he urges that all dogs be vaccinated. Cats, if they are allowed outside, also should be vaccinated.

Social Security to be discussed at YMCA

A Social Security seminar will be conducted at 10:15 a.m. Tuesday at the Appleton YMCA. This is a part of the weekly program for the retired, but the seminar will be open to interested people in the community.

Richard Mickelberg, field representative for the Appleton Social Security office, will lead the discussion, which will include Medicare and Medicaid.

After the program there will be a demonstration of exercises for the retired people, luncheon, swimming, cards, fellowship and a "learn how to play pool" demonstration.

If anyone needs transportation, he or she may contact the YMCA for the mini-bus service.

The Tuesday sessions are open to everyone who wishes to participate for the whole day or any portion of the day. A nominal fee is charged for the luncheon.

REPRESENTATIVE TO THE ASSEMBLY

REPUBLICAN

Tobias A. ROTH

ROTH for ASSEMBLY

The Best Qualified Candidate

Dear Voter:

I want to express to you my very real appreciation to all of you for the kindness and consideration you have shown us in this campaign.

On April 10th I announced my candidacy for the State Assembly. For eight months we have been campaigning at parks, sidewalk sales, door-to-door, etc. and our reception by you has always been warm and gratifying. For this we thank you very much.

During this campaign I have pledged to work for property tax relief and a no tax increase budget. Welfare reform, improved environment, quality education will be just a few of the things I will concentrate on in the next session of the legislature. My door will always be open to your questions and opinions.

But beyond this I would like to put into practice what our forefathers believed of men serving in public office — that men in public office set a very high example. I shall endeavor to set such an example and in this way demonstrate in a small way that ours is the finest form of government ever devised by men and that our system does work.

Tomorrow is election day and I hope you will exercise your right to vote.

Sincerely and THANKS,

Toby Roth
